STOCKHOLM, Aug. 31— Ha... German occupation au... ...ities in Denmark, having ...ed a military revolt after ... days of violent fighting, were ...ed today with a new threat as ...ries of general strikes against ... dictatorship broke out in ... cities.

With King Christian a prisoner, ...ost of the government mem... ...s jailed or under house ar... ...st and scores of other promi... ...nt Danes in prison, Gen Her... ...n Von Hannecken moved to ...ighten the German military grip ...ver the country by rounding up ...l Danish army and navy offi... ...ers.

Von Hannecken ...ushed troops to areas where strikes were re... ...ted paralyzing every type of ...siness. The cities affected were Skagen, Jhoerning, Saeby, Aalborg, Viborg, Aarhus, Grenaa, Fredericksa and Svenborg. Extraordinary efforts were taken to prevent spread of the strikes to other industrial centers.

Danes Uncowed

The strikes indicated the Danes were uncowed by threats of drastic penalties, including death, under Von Hannecken's martial law decree instituted before dawn Sunday, when he stripped the government of Premier Eric Scavenius of all power.

Danish citizens living in Stockholm expressed belief that political leaders outside Denmark would form a free Danish government in London and ally it formally with the United Nations.

Free Danish leaders headed by Christmas Moeller have been functioning in London, but until now lacked authority to exercise governmental powers. The Nazi officials recognized the threat of Moeller's influence in Denmark by immediately arresting most leaders of his conservative party.

Danish legal experts in Sweden take the view today that a state of war now exists between Germany and Denmark since the military dictatorship powers which Von Hannecken says he is applying under article 42 of the Hague convention can be exercised only in an enemy force.

King Threatens To Abdicate

Confronting Von Hannecken was an abdication threat from King Christian. Refugees reported the king said he would step down if the Germans arrested Danes as hostages in connection with battles, sabotage or other disturbances.

Denmark's most popular and influential figure, he maintained that innocent persons should not be arrested.

Reports reaching Sweden through rigid Nazi censorship said 1,000 army and 200 Navy officers had been interned. One unconfirmed rumor reported a roundup of Danish Jews in which 50 were arrested, including C. B. Henriques, leader of the Jewish colony in Copenhagen.

Already the Danes, besides scuttling their own fleet, have scuttled up all Danish-manned forces except those at Middelfart. Here, however, the garrison threw all its ammunition into the sea before the Germans had an opportunity to seize it.

Telephone, cable and mail communications between Denmark remained severed today.

Reports reaching Sweden today said all members of the Danish royal family, with the exception of the king and queen, were being held as prisoners by the Germans at Amalienborg palace in Copenhagen. The king and queen were reported at Sorgenfri castle, ... miles outside the capital.

37 JAP PLANES ARE DESTROYED

U. S. Fliers Add Toll to More Than 300 Shot Down Since Mid-August.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 31—Liberators and Lightnings, in a 114-ton bombing attack on Wewak, New Guinea, have added at least 37 planes, and possibly 49, to the more than 300 destroyed there since mid-August.

This new air victory, scored Sunday, was reported today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in a communique which also disclosed that allied troops hold strong ridge positions above as well as below the airdrome at Salamaua, 350 miles below Wewak.

At Wewak, where the enemy has sent in reinforcements, the Liberators wiped out at least 12 planes on the ground while the Lightnings, in furious battles with 60 Zeros, downed 25 for certain, 12 probably, and damaged at least 17 others.

"Our losses were light," the communique said.

Today's communique told of allied forces repulsing Japanese counterattacks Saturday night and early Sunday on Kila ridge. Kila is a small town above the airdrome and slightly west of Salamaua.

The communique also reported a raid by a strong force of Mitchell medium bombers which dropped 45 tons of bombs on supply bases at Alexishafen and Bogadjim, between Wewak and Salamaua. Many barges were sunk.

Across New Britain from the New Guinea battle scene, a Catalina on night patrol dropped a 500-pound bomb squarely on a Japanese cruiser in the vicinity of Kavieng, New Ireland.

CIANO WHEREABOUTS STILL A MYSTERY

(Pictures on Page 8)

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 31 — A good part of Europe joined the guessing game today over the whereabouts of Count Galeazzo Ciano, former Italian foreign minister and son-in-law of Benito Mussolini who apparently has escaped from house arrest at his home in Rome.

He was variously reported arrested near the French frontier hiding in a Spanish embassy in Rome, and at Innsbruck in Germany.

At least two reports had Ciano at Innsbruck. A Reuter dispatch from the Italian frontier said the latest word was that he had gotten over the border "with the assistance of foreign friends" and that his escape was causing great indignation throughout Italy. This coincided with the German underground radio Atlantik report, which said Ciano was at Innsbruck.

Simultaneously a DNB report from Rome quoted Stefani news agency as saying that both Ciano and Count Dino Grandi, member of the Fascist grand council, had been placed on the "retired list."

The London Daily Express quoted unconfirmed reports from Bern that Ciano his wife Edda and their three children had been arrested near the French frontier.

The dispatch said that Ciano was dressed as a peasant and had large bundles of French, Italian and Spanish currency in his possession.

No Second Front Until Success Is Certain, Churchill Declares

Prime Minister Speaks in Quebec; Reaffirms His and Roosevelt's Desire To Meet Stalin.

The Associated Press

QUEBEC, Aug. 30 — Prime Minister Churchill said today that "nothing is nearer to the wishes of President Roosevelt and myself than to have a three-fold meeting with Marshal Stalin," but he declared that an Allied second front would be opened on the continent only when there was every chance of military success unswayed by political considerations.

The prime minister said he did not blame Russia for any criticism it had leveled at the allies for not having launched a new offensive in western Europe.

He made it clear, however, that the positive factor of military success was paramount.

"The President and I will persevere in our efforts to meet Marshal Stalin," he said, in a broadcast address.

"And in the meantime it seems most necessary and urgent that a conference of the British, United States and Russian foreign ministers or their responsible representatives should be held at some convenient place in order not merely to explore the various important questions connected with the future arrangements for world security, but to carry those discussions to a point where the heads of the states and governments may be able to intervene."

The prime minister, refreshed from his labors at the Quebec war council by a week of fishing in the Laurentian mountains, turned again to the question of a second front in Europe, declaring.

"We once had a fine front in France, but it was torn to pieces by the concentrated might of Hitler, and it is easier to have front pulled down that it is to build it up again."

Looks To Day of Attack

"However, he went on "I look forward to the day when British and American liberating armies will cross the channel in full force and come to close quarters with the German invaders of France.

"You would certainly not wish me to tell you when this is likely to happen; wether it be near or far, but whenever the great blow is struck you may be sure that it will be because we are satisfied that there is a good prospect of continuing success and that our soldiers are expended in accordance with sound military plans and not squandered for political considerations of any kind."

Churchill said a tripartite meeting among Britain, the United States and Russia "would be of very great advantage to everyone, and indeed to the whole free world, if our unity of thought and decision upon practical measures to the longer future as well as upon strategic problems could be reached between the three great opponents of the Hitlerite tyranny."

Turning to beleaguered Italy, Churchill said:

"Mussolini has been overthrown. The war impulse of Italy has been destroyed and that unhappy country is paying a terrible penalty for allowing itself to be misled by false and criminal guides."

Churchill said a large number of German troops had lately been drawn from France "in order to hold down the Italian people" and to make Italy a battleground so as to keep the war as far distant from Germany and as prolonged as possible.

By far the greatest part of the German air force, he said, had been drained from the Russian front and is now being engaged and "worn down with ever growing intensity night and day by British and American and Canadian airmen."

The terrific aerial attack against Germany, Churchill said, would not have been possible without the magnificent stand of the Russians against Hitler's forces.

No country, he declared, ever had withstood such a devastating attack as that thrown at the Russians.

Sees Warning to Rulers

The fate of King Boris of Bulgaria, he pointed out, might serve as a warning to other rulers that "the wages of sin is death."

At present, Churchill pointed out, Britain's principal activity

26 NOW DEAD IN RAIL WRECK

150 Others Hurt as Limited Train Hits Switch Engine in New York.

By The Associated Press

WAYLAND N. Y., Aug. 31 — Twenty-six persons were dead today many of them from inhaling live steam—after the crack Lackawanna Limited passenger train and a switch engine late yesterday crashed head-on near this southwestern New York community.

Approximately 150 others of the 500 passengers on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western's New York-to-Buffalo express were injured, several of them seriously, in New York's worst train disaster in more than three years.

Moans of the injured mingled with the escaping steam from the switch engine as scores of volunteers dug into the tangled debris to effect rescues and remove the dead. The toll was the state's highest on a railroad since April 19, 1940, when the Lake Shore Limited of the New York Central lines crashed on a curve at Little Falls, killing 31 and injuring 135.

Engineer's Statement

The engineer of the limited, James E. Leroy of Buffalo, said the train was speeding through Wayland yesterday when he saw the switch engine on a siding paralleling the main line westbound track.

"The engineer of the local freight locomotive apparently was

PLANS STARTED FOR STAGING OF MARION MOVIE

Hollywood Representatives Arrive To Prepare for Cast's Visit.

Plans for filming important scenes for "The Phantom Filly" in Marion Sept. 16, 17 and 18 were rapidly taking shape today following the arrival in Marion yesterday of two of the key personnel from the 20th Century Fox studios in Hollywood responsible for setting the stage for the new film.

They are R. E. Goux, production manager, who is busy making arrangements for quartering the visiting Hollywood company at Hotel Harding for their stay in Marion, and Paul E. McPherson, nationally known horseman who will be technical director of the picture. Mr. McPherson was in conference today with Frank M. Foster of the Houghton Seed Co., who is arranging a three-day race meet Sept. 16 18 in Marion at which pictures will be filmed that will play an important part in "The Phantom Filly."

Mr. McPherson disclosed today that the climax of the picture will be filmed in Marion, centering largely around the outcome of races to be held at the Marion fairgrounds track.

Roles for Local Residents

In addition to the thousands of persons who, as spectators at the races here will be shown in the picture the studio plans to employ a sizeable number of Marion county residents to work as stand-ins, doubles and extras. They will work with the Hollywood crew in filming scenes at the fairgrounds that can not be taken while the actual race meet is in progress.

At the three-day meet, however, the principals in the picture will be in their box at the grandstand at the fairgrounds, just as they will appear in the finished film.

Walter Brennan, Ward Bond, Charles Dingle and Lon McCallister will have important roles, and two starlets will be brought to Marion for leading feminine parts in the picture. They are Jeanne Crain and June Haver. Willie Best will be one of the Negro grooms to be brought here for scenes around the stables. Marjorie Main, although she will appear in the picture, will not come to Marion because her parts in the film will be staged at the studio.

Large Group Coming

Between 80 and 90 persons will come from Hollywood for the filming to be done in Marion. They will start work on the first day of the three-day race meet, and probably will remain here about 10 days.

Although some plans are still in the tentative stage, it is likely there will be two directors and three or more cameras on the job throughout the race meet in Marion.

Mr. McPherson, in addition to working with Mr. Foster on plans for the three-day meet, is making arrangements to rent 16 trotting horses and equipment to be needed in filming scenes that can not be taken during the race meeting. These include shots like race

MARY CHURCHILL VISITS WAC CENTER

By The Associated Press

FORT OGLETHORPE, Ga., Aug. 31—Youthful Britons still turn from war duties to normal recreational outlets, bright eyed, laughing Mary Churchill said today, but, she admitted, British jitter-bugging just isn't up to American standards.

The youngest daughter of Britain's prime minister and an officer in her country's anti-aircraft service, Miss Churchill was here to visit with a portion of the women's army corps, the American equal of her own auxiliary territorial service.

Answering rapid fire questions during a brief interview, Subaltern Churchill said "of course, we are still having fun" in England.

Jitterbugging? "Surely," she answered, "but we don't do the steps nearly as well as you Americans." Then laughing, she added:

"Oh yes, I try sometimes."

Miss Churchill explained that she did technical work in a mixed anti-aircraft battery where she and fellow members handled devices used in aiming and firing the guns.

"We live in barracks at the battery," she said, "and are on call 24 hours a day."

Her program today called for an inspection of the third WAC training center and the witnessing of a parade before continuing her tour by air.

SOVIET TANKS AND CAVALRY PASS TAGANROG

Important Gains Also Made in Drives in Smolensk Area.

By The Associated Press

Russia's victorious armies sped far beyond recaptured Taganrog along the north shore of the Sea of Azov today in a race to cut off German forces on the Crimea peninsula and collapse the long and bitterly defended Nazi bridgehead in the Caucasus.

Dispatches said Red army cavalry and tanks were advancing steadily and imperilling the seaport of Mariupol, 75 miles west of Taganrog, and the inland industrial city of Stalino, 70 miles to the northwest.

Soviet vanguards, driving unchecked through Nazi defenses, were reported already more than halfway to Mariupol.

The Soviet army also captured the town of Yelnya and Glukhov, in twin drives against the center of the German front, Premier Joseph Stalin announced in two orders of the day.

The Soviet premier first announced the victory at Yelnya, 45 miles east of Smolensk. A short time later, he followed it up with the triumphant announcement that a second drive in the Sevsk sector had netted Glukhov, 42 miles northeast of the important railway junction of Konotop.

Stalin also disclosed that this push had captured Rylsk, 44 miles north of Sumy and 67 miles east of Konotop.

The duel announcements hailed the second and third important victories for the Soviets in two days.

Yelnya is 35 miles west of Spas Demensk, the last town reported captured on the mainline railroad running from Latvia eastward through Smolensk and into central Russia.

Stalin called Yelnya an "operational important large road junction and the most important center of resistance on the defenses in the Smolensk direction."

All Russia celebrated the fall of Taganrog, the sixth major German bastion seized by the Red armies since July 5, and the cannon of Moscow thundered a 124-gun victory salute at the order of Premier Marshal Stalin.

Entire Province Clear

Previously, the Russians had recaptured Orel, Belgorod, Kharkov, Kharkov and Sevsk after crushing the opening assaults of Adolf Hitler's long-awaited summer offensive.

The entire province of Rostov has now been cleared of the German invaders, Premier Stalin announced, and remnants of the Nazi garrison at Taganrog, trapped by Soviet columns which broke through to the coast 28 miles west of the city, are being systematically wiped out.

Taganrog was captured by cavalry and tank units of the southern Russian army commanded by Col. Gen. Tolbukhin.

Triumphantly the Russians announced that 15 populated places had been recaptured in the great victory which threatened the whole German right wing.

The capture of Taganrog followed the same general pattern

Horse Show Holds Spotlight at Fair; Monday Crowd 9,500

Stake Competition Tonight To Close 3-Day Horse Show; Harness Races Begin Wednesday.

The horse show held the entertainment spotlight in the second day's program of the 93rd annual Marion County fair yesterday. Approximately two thirds of the seats in the grandstand were occupied for the event. The show, billed for the first three nights of the fair, will end with tonight's program and will be succeeded by three nights of harness racing beginning Wednesday night.

Last night's crowd was estimated at approximately 5,500 and the attendance in the afternoon at around 4,000.

Highlighting tonight's horse show will be the stake events. Competition will be keen with some of the best horses, many of which were entered in Sunday and last night's show, vieing for ribbons. A Gay Nineties event is scheduled for this program. Entertainment in front of the grandstand this afternoon featured the WMRN Jamboree.

Wednesday Features

The fair will hit its full stride Wednesday with afternoon shows taking the spotlight in front of the grand stand, and harness racing on the night bill-of-fare. Gus Sun's Victory Grandstand Stars will provide the afternoon entertainment.

Harding High school and Pleasant Township school bands will furnish music for the stock parades on Thursday and Friday. The Harding band will play in the Junior Fair program on Thursday at 12:30 p. m. and on Friday the Pleasant school band will entertain the fair visitors. Entertainment in front of the grandstand for the two days will feature Sun Bros. Circus with "Ricardo Clemento and his ferocious Mexican Lions."

Horse Show Finals Tonight

Last night's crowd, while not nearly so large as on the opening night, was having fun. They found much to entertain themselves on the grounds and the grandstand patrons saw some of the finest show horses of the midwest go through their paces. Frank Foster, a member of the horse show committee, and Mrs. Foster had in their party R. E. Goux, production manager and Paul E. McPherson, technical director from 20th Century-Fox studio, here in the interest of the filming of the serial story, "The Phantom Filly." The Marion fairground will be the setting for a part of the filming of the $2,000,000 picture here on Sept. 16, 17 and 18.

Quality Horses

While entries in the various horse show events were not large the audience saw quality as the horses paraded in the ring. Judge Herbert Marks of Niles, Mich., who is regarded as "tops" in the realm of horsemen, experienced some difficulty in making up his mind in some of the classes, particularly in the Class 21, over 15.2, three-gaited event. When the ribbons were distributed Miss Jackqueline, owned by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Duemling of Pittsburgh, carried off first honors, Checkerhall, owned by Mrs. David Davies of Columbus, second, and Erin Bloom, owned by C. E. Dunn of Curtis, was third. Miss Patricia Lawler presented the ribbons.

Harold Wickersham, 8, again appeared in the ring with his trick pony, and an added attraction and one which pleased the audience highly was the six-horse hitch staged by L. M. Wickersham of Marion.

Lew Marsh of WMRN again acted as announcer. Presenting the awards were Miss Mary Ann Houghten, Miss Harriet Watson,

HEAVY CATTLE SALES LEADING TO CRISIS

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 31 — Plenty of steaks—and a beef crisis—are on the way.

Grass-fat beef for a steak-hungry nation is beginning to flood the Kansas City market. Receipts yesterday were approximately 240 carloads, the largest supply in several years.

Southwestern cattlemen, though, fear a crisis will follow if widespread liquidation of their herds continues — and they're meeting Thursday to try to halt the stampede to sell, and show the way to steadier supplies in the months to come.

Livestockmen of 15 states will meet with government representatives and public officials to wrestle with problems of feed and marketing and of fitting the flow of beef to the complicated conditions of America at war.

George Montgomery, formerly chief of the feeds and grains section of the office of price administration and now a professor of economics and sociology at Kansas State college, said widespread liquidation of livestock would seriously hinder the war effort.

Victory House War Bond Sales Gain

Bonds and stamps sold from the Victory House last week totaled $2,681.25 and $164.55 respectively, according to a report today by Miss Maud Gorham, chairman of the women's division of the Marion County War Finance committee. Bond sales totaled $1,856.25 for the previous week and stamp sales were $166.65.

Daily sales were as follows: Monday, bonds, $187.50, stamps, $44; Tuesday, bonds, $187.50, stamps, $23.75; Wednesday, bonds, $37.50, stamps, $23.90; Thursday, bonds, $1,518.75, stamps, $20.85; Friday, bonds, $468.75, stamps, $15.40; Saturday, bonds, $281.25, stamps, $36.50.

Annual War Chest Drive Opening Set

Monday, Nov. 1, is the date set for opening of the Marion County War Chest drive. Selection of the date and preliminary plans for the annual event were made at a meeting of the board of trustees of the Chest yesterday at Hotel Marion. The drive will end Nov. 10.

In addition to supporting local character building and welfare organizations, the funds contributed in the drive will provide the county's share in the support of the USO and war relief societies helping victims in England, Russia, China and other countries allied with the United States in the global warfare.

The war chest includes the Marion Community Foundation, Inc., which is made up of the Salvation Army, Y. M. C. A., Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and Girl Reserves.

City School Finances To Be Discussed Tonight

Preparing to hold a public meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Central Junior High school auditorium, the Marion city board of education today renewed its appeal for citizens to participate in the discussion of school financial problems scheduled for the meeting.

Dr. F. L. Thomas, vice president of the board, will preside, and persons in the audience will be invited to offer suggestions as to how the schools can operate satisfactorily in view of the recent defeat of a proposed two-mill school levy.

G. O. P. WOMEN OPEN SESSION

Advisory Board of National Federation Meeting in Cincinnati.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug 31—A two-day meeting of the advisory board of the National Federation of Women's Republican clubs opened today to draft recommendations for presentation to the party's post-war advisory council at Mackinac Island, Mich., next week.

Mrs W Glenn Sutners of Chicago, president, disclosed a message from Harrison E Spangler, Republican national chairman, urging women to take 'full participation in every line" of activity and policy making.

Spangler said the final report of the post-war council should be presented shortly before the next national convention, when the entire national committee will vote on it.

"In some respects," he said, 'that' through us it means we will be able to crystallize the thoughts of our party and be able to present to our next convention a suggested platform which will be short, concise, and streamlined."

Mrs Suthers told the board "we apologize to no one for this patriotic service" of maintaining public interest in politics.

Declaring that administration spokesmen had said no one should be interested in politics now, she said in a prepared address opening the meeting:

"Indeed, politics is needed. For it is through our political system that we choose our public officials. The officials we elect in 1944 will be entrusted with writing the peace * * * and with rebuilding our economy according to American ideals."

Mrs Suthers asserted the administration was doing "political fence-building" by discarding "leftist dreamers and planners" and added:

"They are too late to erase the crimes that have been committed in the trial-and-error administration and the waste of the nation's resources of food and other commodities. Empty pantry shelves next winter will be a grim reminder of the cost of New Deal mismanagement."

MRS. MILTON ERLANGER
She Trains Dogs for Defense

[illegible] Mrs Erlanger's love for [illegible] brought her a mission [illegible] different from any [illegible]

She is consultant on the dog program to the quartermaster general of the United States Army. What it means that she is helping train the dogs that are saving American lives in the jungles and in the snows. It also means that she has the [illegible] and the [illegible] of her military service to the Signal Corps.

Mrs Erlanger, who is small blond and as feminine as lace seems to have been heading toward that job for the better part of her life. As a child she loved, owned and trained dogs. As the wife of a New York manufacturer she ran a kennel of 200 dogs and collected a flock of silver show cups. As an active figure in the dog world, she became impressed with the military service which dogs can render in wartime. So when war broke out, she helped found Dogs for Defense—an organization which has since supplied thousands of dogs for the Army's dog training program. In the course of that work she came in contact with Maj Gen Edmund B Gregory, quartermaster general, and eventually became his consultant on the dog program.

Gets Experience

Since then Mrs Erlanger has worked with leading dog trainers of this country and allied nations to establish a blueprint for teachers to follow in training dogs. The dogs they have trained in five different centers in the country are now working in every combat area where American soldiers fight.

"We are training five different classes of dogs," Mrs Erlanger said in the torrential spill of words with which she discusses her favorite subject. "To begin with of course, there are sentry dogs which accompany a sentry at night. They can scent an intruder whom the sentry can neither see nor hear. And they also guard ammunition dumps and food storage plants.

"Then there are attack dogs trained to go out on command after escaping prisoners. The main thing in their training is to teach them to stop biting once they begin. We are also training combat dogs. They are particularly useful in jungle warfare. Camouflage won't fool them. They go ahead of scouting patrols and give warnings of ambushes or attempts at infiltration.

"Messenger dogs are another important part of the program. All through the jungle scouting patrols need to send messages back to the command post, and dogs can carry them better than men. Men get lost and make noise. Dogs can slip through all kinds of terrain and can find their way from one outpost to another. They are trained to run between two men—one with the scouting patrol, one at the front lines. Pigeons were used to carry messages in the last war but they will only fly one way—toward home. The dogs will run both ways.

Another Class

"The fifth class we are training is casualty dogs. They work at the front too. They find the wounded dash back to their master and report them and then lead him to the spot. In all this work we have had to train men too, for the dogs will work only with the men who are their masters."

Mrs. Erlanger, who is the mother of a son now in service and two grown daughters, no longer maintains her kennels, though she still keeps a few dogs. She does not want to mention breeds in discussing the Army's dog training program. But she will tell you the breed she prefers herself. Poodles.

He's Still Flying High at 47

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Writer

AT A U. S. BOMBER STATION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND — There's a sign at Eighth Air Force officers' bar, "Lieutenant-colonels under twenty-one not allowed unless accompanied by parents," and it's unusual to find among the fliers anybody as old as 25. But on an occasional raid you'll find in the cockpit of one of the Fortresses a man old enough to have two sons also in the Air Force.

He is Major Edwin Burge of Asheville, N. C., still in active flying at the age of 47. He possibly is not the oldest man participating in aerial combat in this war, but he's certainly the only man who was running a chain of shoe stores at the time of Pearl Harbor, walked out of his business to try his hand at flying a four-engined bomber for the first time, and made a success of it.

Burge's son Hal, 22, is a lieutenant instructor at the air base at Greenville, S. C., and the major just got word a few days ago that his other son Scott, 18, had just joined up with the Air Force too.

Burge was a pursuit pilot in the World War and stayed in the Air Force until 1929, and then returned to go in the shoe business.

On December 7, 1941, he was running stores in Asheville and Jacksonville and Miami, Fla., but he was immediately smitten with a yen to get back in flying.

He signed up on April 25, 1942, as a captain, and was posted as assistant commandant of cadets at Luke Field in Phoenix, Ariz.

MAJOR EDWIN BURGE

He went through physical exams at three stations before they'd certify him as fit to fly. Then he went to the air base at Walla Walla, Wash., and got his first crack at a four-engined plane.

Burge got the knack quickly, ran up enough flying time to qualify him, and arrived over here last fall.

Technically he's the operations officer of a group of Fortresses whose job is on the ground. But convenient "contingencies" have arisen for Burge three times so far — on raids on Rouen, Amiens and Paris. Each time he flew as co-pilot.

Little Chats on Public Notices

By JAMES E. POLLARD
Ohio State University

PUBLISHED PROCEEDINGS

Not long since a Wisconsin circuit court ordered the city council of Superior to resume the publication of the proceedings of legislative paper. Some months earlier the council had voted to discontinue their publication.

What such a decision means is that where the law calls for publication of the proceedings of legislative and other official bodies, they have no discretion unless it is so stated. The purpose of the law was to insure that the voters and taxpayers were kept informed as to the activities of the council. In the case in question there was no evidence of any attempt at concealment.

Even so, there are situations when it is a sound provision of the law to make such publications mandatory rather than permissive. When public bodies fail to account regularly for their stewardship, the way is open for trouble. The publication of such Public Notices in a newspaper of general circulation is to help lock the barn before the horse is stolen.

Rural Young People Have Big Role in County Fair Exhibits

Hundreds of Boys and Girls from Schools, F. F. A. and 4-H Clubs Enter Livestock and Handicraft.

By BOB BYRD

The Marion county fair is as big and as good as ever—and once again the accent is on youth.

That, at least, is the impression one would get from a trip around the grounds yesterday afternoon or this morning as exhibitors went through the final details of getting their entries in place for showing to the thousands of persons expected to visit the grounds before the fair closes Friday night.

Despite wartime demands on the time of all workers and the rationing of gasoline, the stock barns and other displays at the fair this year are up to standard and in some instances are rivaling the entries of former years.

Junior Fair Outstanding

And once again the junior fair is one of the big standouts, with the handiwork of hundreds of boys and girls going on display.

In what formerly was the art hall, the junior fair has almost completely taken over the building with attractive booths of clothing, foods and crops. In other nearby buildings and tents are scores of animals raised as projects by the county's younger farmers, all of them still in school.

The junior fair is really a three-ring attraction, with 4-H clubs, Future Farmers of America (vocational agriculture students in the rural schools) and home economics girls each putting on separate but rather closely related exhibits.

Numerous Booths

In the 4-H end of the building, there are 17 booths prepared by 4-H girls' clubs including the Grand Prairie, Meeker, Waldo Juniors, Green Camp seniors, Green Camp Juniors, Agosta, Big Island, Caledonia, LaRue, Prospect and Morral clubs. Each has a seven-foot booth laden with the results of their summer handiwork through the 4-H girls' program headed up in Marion county by Mrs. Christine Cook, county home demonstration agent.

In addition, Kirkpatrick, Pleasant, Claridon Juniors and Seniors, Waldo Seniors and Meeker girls' clubs each have 15-foot booths—displays similar to the others but larger.

The 4-H boys' work is scattered but adds up to an imposing total. There are some 400 boys in 14 4-H boys' clubs, and their entries include 25 to 30 sheep, 20 cattle and 25 to 30 entries in crops and vegetables.

One massive vegetable booth—21 feet long—holds the vegetable entries of both the boys' and girls' 4-H club members throughout the county, and in it is convincing evidence that the generation of farm youths now showing at the fair knows all of the fine points of gardening. Not many adult gardeners would care to put their displays along side those of the boys and girls showing vegetables at the fair.

652 F.F.A. Entries

The Future Farmers of American, made up of vocational agriculture students, have almost a full-size fair of their own. Robert Jackson, vocational agriculture instructor at Caledonia and Claridon schools, reported 70 entries in hogs, 50 in sheep, 20 in dairy cattle, 20 in beef cattle, 30 farm shop entries and some 253 crop project entries. In all, there are some 653 entries from approximately 100 exhibitors in this phase of the junior fair.

These boys have a new feature to attract their interest this year. It is a showmanship class for all Marion county residents under 21 years who wish to show swine, beef cattle, dairy cattle and sheep in the show ring. They will lead the animals around the ring and the judge will score them on appearance of the animal and the manner of showing. This will be held in a series of separate sessions Wednesday afternoon.

The home economics students in the Marion county schools will have six booths of clothing and food projects for showing. Some 100 girls are expected to be represented by the time all the displays are in place, and will include such garments as dresses, housecoats, blouses and skirts. This department is in charge of Miss Gladys Uncapher, instructor at Pleasant township school, and Miss Dorothy McClure, who was home economics instructor at Waldo last year and who will teach at Prospect this year.

Two Style Shows

Two style shows are on the junior fair program.

One will be given by the home economics girls Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. with some 50 girls expected to participate. The girls will model garments they have made and will be scored.

The other will be the 4-H girls' style show at 2 p. m. Friday with approximately 100 girls expected to take part. The show will be preceded by a demonstration by the Kirkpatrick club of its Victory project of remodeling clothes. Winners in each class in this show will compete in a district show at Bucyrus next month, and winners there will go on to a state contest.

Mrs. Avonella Lavender of Ostrander will judge both of the style shows.

Large Livestock Exhibits

The portions of the fair for adult competition are no less colorful than those of the junior fair.

There are some 60 draft horse entries, assuring lively competition in judging set for Wednesday and Thursday. Grade stock will be judged Wednesday, registered horses Thursday. This turnout is heavier than in some previous years, and the entries come almost entirely from Marion and adjoining counties.

Seventy-five entries in sheep assure that department about a normal representation in the fair. Cattle with 65 to 70 entries, fell off a little from some past years, but in hogs the entries are well ahead of most former years with 150 entries listed.

Grange exhibits have been entered by Bethlehem, Mt. Olive and United Granges, showing in colorful and interesting booths the activities of the Granges, along with the results of the agricultural work of their members.

Concessions Busy

In yesterday afternoon's crowd at the fair, juveniles outnumbered adults by a substantial margin, and this brought joy to the hearts of many of the operators of concessions, who did a lively business with mechanical rides and games of all kinds. Candy-dipped apples, a crushed-ice sherbet confection and other items appealing both to the eye and the appetite sold almost as fast as vendors could push them across the counter, and at times there were waiting lines at such points as the ferris wheel and pony ride.

Military Features

Commercial concerns arranging advertising booths at the fair were busy getting their displays in shape, anticipating the bigger crowds later in the week. The Red Cross mobile canteen unit was being set up near the grandstand. A military touch was given to the fair exhibits by two booths—one set up by the WACS and the other by the Navy Recruiting office.

Early arrivals for the harness races were working out on the track. Fair officials wrestled with last minute problems of finding space for all comers.

If there was any element of a typical Marion county fair lacking, no one missed it.

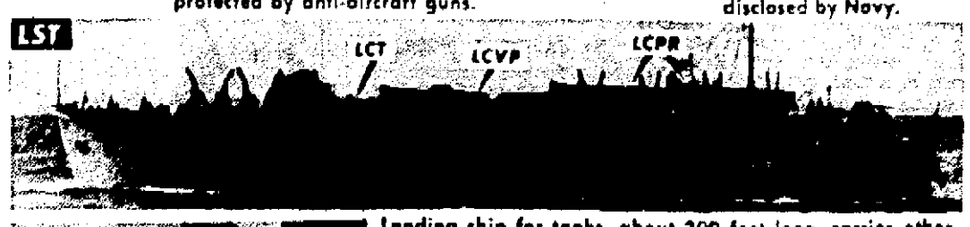
Here Is America's Invasion Fleet

AP Features

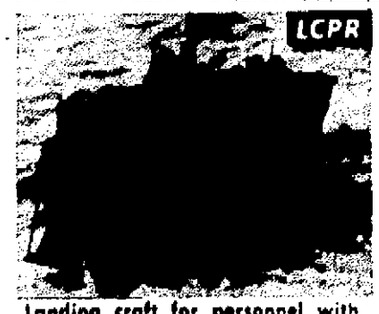
HERE are the landing craft that will carry invading American troops to the shores of Europe. Tested in Sicily, and of different sizes and designs, they have one aim: to bring war home to the enemy.

This large infantry landing craft can cross the ocean under its own power. Men debark from gangways along each side, protected by anti-aircraft guns.

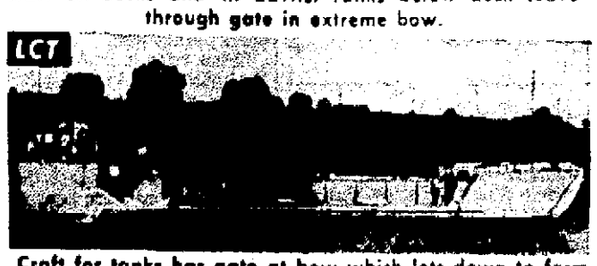
Dock landing ship, one of new, secret craft, has uses still undisclosed by Navy.



Landing ship for tanks, about 300 feet long, carries other craft on decks and in davits. Tanks below deck leave through gate in extreme bow.



Landing craft for personnel with ramp dashes from transport to shore. It's in test run here.



Craft for tanks has gate at bow which lets down to form ramp from which tanks go ashore. It can travel hundreds of miles on its own power.

Landing craft for mechanized equipment carries tanks, motorized artillery, heavy vehicles. It works like this Marine Corps "crocodile boat."

Craft for vehicles and personnel hauls either soldiers or trucks and light cars.

MARION SOLDIER'S MAGIC ENTERTAINS AT FT. KNOX

Pvt. Sansotta Enlivens Lecture Periods.

Pvt. Dominic "Swami" Sansotta of 311 Pennsylvania avenue sees that lectures on first aid and other subjects are seldom dull at the Armored replacement center at Ft. Knox, Ky., according to a report from the public relations department there. Pvt. Sansotta, former amateur magician and bottling plant operator, is frequently called upon by lecturing officers to do a trick as a training aid.

Sansotta makes a few mystic passes, and, presto, pulls a piece of chalk from the officer's ear. The officer then scribbles on a blackboard while his audience looks on, very much awake. Sansotta sometimes used his "arm guillotine," a contraption that apparently cuts off a man's arm, only it doesn't. After a volunteer's arm has been "amputated," he acts as a victim for first-aid treatment.

Sansotta, who also is adept at tricks with cards and lighted cigarets, as yet has not been able to produce passes and furloughs from his first sergeant's ear.

• Whenever the going here at home seem too tough, we think of the front-line railroaders . . . the men who keep supplies moving up to the fighters in the battle zone.

Bombs rip the tracks from under their wheels. Enemy planes machine-gun them from cab to caboose. Yet somehow, by sheer guts and fighting heart, they get the Army supply trains through.

Some of them worked with us on the Central, before they traded their overalls for uniforms. And a lot more of us would like to be over there with them.

But we know that we've got our railroading job to do too . . . behind the lines.

We can't hear the big guns blasting back here. But we can see thousands of freight trains thundering across the country day and night . . . packed to the couplings with fighting equipment . . . carrying double the loads they carried before . . . racing against time.

• We can't go into battle with the two million soldiers we help transport each month. But we can back them up. We can keep guns and shells, tanks and jeeps, planes and bombs pouring in a mighty torrent over America's rails . . . from thousands of roaring warplants to thousands of waiting ships . . . to make sure that these fighting men have more than enough to bury Axis aggression beneath an overwhelming weight of armor and firepower!

And we can't ride with those fighting railroaders in the cabs of their Army engines. But we can promise them that no job will be too big, no working hour too long, no sacrifice too great . . . if what we do will shorten the war as much as a single day.

For they are more than holding up their end of the greatest supply line on earth. And if they can do it over there, we can keep on doing it here!

WOMAN IN BLACK CLUE IN WAC DEATH

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 31—A "woman in black," unknown but eagerly sought, today was believed holding the key to the hotel slaying of WAC Corp. Maomia L. Ridings.

Police Chief Clifford R. Becker investigating a bellboy's report of seeing the woman in black in Corp. Ridings' room when he took soft drinks there Saturday night said: "I feel certain when this woman is found the case will be solved."

The possibility that the woman might have been a man masquerading was advanced by Lt. Noel Jones in charge of the detective investigation.

Dr. Roy B. Storms, Marion county coroner, said there was evidence of rape, and attributed the Georgia girl's death to shock and loss of blood contingent upon a severed jugular vein.

Jones reported that an 18-year-old youth surrendered to police in New Castle, Ind., and confessed the killing. He was held on a vagrancy charge, but Jones said a check of the youth's confession failed to substantiate his account of being in Indianapolis the night of the killing.

Meantime a milkman on his rounds found a WAC sergt. of Corp. Ridings's description coming from the downtown hotel.

Summer's End

THERE is nothing out of the ordinary about the coming of September and the ending of another summer. Yet, this year it is different.

The very rawness of the beginning of fall highlights the difference. Here, the mornings are misty and the nights are cold, as they always are at this time of year. The first fallen leaves lie on the grass, beginning its autumn growth a little earlier than usual because of rain. The children are getting ready for school. Vacations are over. Tomatoes are ripe in the gardens, and out in the country farmers are putting in wheat.

But these things that always happen here at the close of August are reminders of things happening elsewhere—things that don't always happen. In England, young men are waiting for the long nights that will cover them on their raids deep into Germany. In the Mediterranean, they are watching the change of seasons on the historic island of Sicily. In the south Pacific, they are counting the days of the monsoon and wondering what may happen in Asia when Lord Louis Mountbatten arrives to lead the drive against Burma. In Alaska and the Aleutians, with the Japanese routed from the Aleutians, they are preparing the thrust that will carry them westward toward Japan, itself. All over the earth, in every zone and continent, on islands, on the sea and in the air, Americans this year are thinking about summer's end back home and doing their part in the winning of the victory that will hasten their return.

The summer that was to have brought the turning point in the war has come up to expectations. Doubt on our side has changed to confidence; on the other side there is much evidence that skepticism has turned to despair. Militarily, the United States has reached maturity. It has mustered its strength and now is exerting it. Summer's end finds its fighting men holding the upper hand in every contest where they are engaged. It finds a greater harvest than many expected, with their foolish misgivings about nature's habit of overcoming its own mistakes. Most of the things most Americans have worried about haven't happened at the beginning of another fall.

It is a season of hope, with much to be done but with much will to do it. Men's instinct to take stock of their affairs in the spring and fall has been applied to their wartime tasks. Their harvest in the work of producing a better civilization from the nbilities and resources challenged by world war has been abundant and is being put to good use. During the months to come, they are confident of bringing their work nearer to completion. That is the message they would like to send to their fighting forces throughout the world at the time when the last month of summer is ending. The job that has been so well begun will be hastened to completion.

Mr. Green's Right To Strike

WILLIAM GREEN'S desire to get even with congressmen who voted for the Smith-Connally act by defeating them when they run for reelection runs feverishly through his public statements. Adding fuel to the flame of his indignation, the AFL president made a remarkable statement before the Ohio Federation of Labor in Columbus.

He said, referring to the Smith-Connally act, that labor is willing to put the gun behind the door for the duration of the war, but doesn't intend that the gun should be taken away from it forever. That certainly was not the intention of congress. The Smith-Connally act is strictly a war measure.

The act is not an attempt to revoke labor's right to strike—forever, or even in wartime. It is an attempt to avert wartime work stoppages and never would have been tried if labor had not reached for the gun behind the door too often. Other rights—the rights of fighting men—were threatened.

While Mr. Green was talking, airplane production was being held up in an important plant of Brewster Aeronautical Corp. because union employes stopped work when four plant guards were arrested by the United States coast guard for refusing to take the posts of duty assigned to them. The guards, members of the plant union, also belonged to the coast guard temporary reserve.

The union concerned does not happen to be part of the AFL, but the Smith-Connally act does not happen to be concerned with jurisdictions. It is a legislative attempt to give force to popular conviction that war production should not be held up by petty bickering at home while American men are fighting for their lives abroad. If Mr. Green and his associates in union leadership hadn't reached for the gun so often, they wouldn't need to be worrying about the mousetrap on its trigger for the duration. As a matter of fact, if they don't intend to reach for it until the war's over, what's the shouting about? When the war's over, the Smith-Connally act goes out of existence automatically.

PROBLEM SOLVED

It is hinted in Berlin that the next lot of tanks to be used against Russia will be immensely more practical. Perhaps they will be equipped with high-speed reverse gears.—Washington Star.

News Behind the News

Washington Grave Diggers' Case Cited as Sample of How Bureaus Function.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—The [illegible] bunkers [illegible] a new golden [illegible] from [illegible] harassed by [illegible] bureaucrats [illegible].

I don't know how they are getting [illegible] of the people and, but they certainly had a helluva time at the [illegible].

At one of the largest cemeteries in Washington, where at least [illegible] are buried a day (including [illegible] Senators), the 12 grave diggers started last summer [illegible] to go on strike. They claimed they could not live on $33 a week and support families of four or five children, and they demanded a raise of $3 a week.

This sounded fair enough to the cemetery board handling that eleemosynary organization. It authorized the increase, but Manpower McNutt ruled that grave digging is not an essential occupation—a pretty ironical judgment, especially in war. The board, therefore, had to get government approval before the increase could be granted and sought its lawyer. Then the fun started, away back last March.

Case Presented

Papers were prepared and a case was presented to the regional wage stabilization director. The cemetery board was forced to get affidavits from each grave digger showing how much he spent for doctors' bills medicine, children in school, and what not, and swearing he needed the $3 a week more.

The case dragged on weeks and months, with telephone calls, letters, and presentations of heavy documents containing a lot of "pursuant theretos," "ipso factos," and everything except "e pluribus unum." Finally in April, the wage director denied the application. He sent a printed form letter, more legal in its language than any decision the supreme court ever issued. At one place in it, the form read:

"The following comments are applicable to your case."

Followed by a blank space where he inserted, "none." (Incidentally, have you ever seen a government form among the many you have filled out these past years that ever gave an opportunity to face the facts of your case to fight and filed an appeal. The grave diggers were individual case clearly)?

Fight Continues

Well, the cemetery people doggedly grumbling both outwardly and inwardly, but were kept at work by a patient management, willing to foot all the expense of getting them a raise. The appeal papers were drawn up containing more affidavits.

Finally, last month, the mighty regional appeal board handed down its proud judgment. It not denied the application, inserting, however a "but," a very large "but."

It directed that the board switch the workers to an hourly wage rate, and juggle the rate, and work the men more hours so that they could be paid all but 28 cents of the increase agreed upon six months before by the grave diggers and their employers.

No more typical example could be found of the depths of nonsense to which war regulations have plunged the average man and woman. You have to hire a lawyer to live these days.

Tyrannical Stringency

The national laws are necessary to stop inflation, just as all these national regulations, no doubt, are necessary, but in the enforcement of them, a tyrannical stringency is practiced which is absurd. Bureaucrats from top to bottom issue orders to each other, refusing to let each other deviate one iota from a national order.

Many good men are in those organizations, but there are also many marionettes and snave-tail gauleiters who cannot see above the letter of the law to the human beings trying to live.

Any reasonable man outside the government in the above case would have given the grave diggers their raise without a moment's hesitation, saving thousands of dollars of time and expense in view of the eleemosynary, health, humane, or any of the other considerations involved.

Alas, poor Yorick, he did not know what the world was coming to. Let all these proud and mighty officials look up the real origin of the "cradle to the grave" phrase. It comes from an 18th Century poem by John Dyer:

A little rule, a little sway
A sunbeam on a winter's day
Is all the proud and mighty have
Between the cradle and the grave.

Best Seller of the War

From the New York Herald Tribune.

ASKED what the current best sellers are in the field of non-fiction, almost any one might hazard a guess that Wendell L. Willkie's "One World" would be high up on the list; Walter Lippmann's "U. S. Foreign Policy," Eve Curie's "Journey Among Warriors," Harry Emerson Fosdick's "On Being a Real Person" and William L. White's "Queens Die Proudly" would also come to mind.

But this is literally true only if the term "best seller" is restricted to books that have been recently published. Actually, there is one standard work of non-fiction that is being produced at a rate as great as all these currently popular books combined. That, it need hardly be said, is the Bible.

Publishers report a tremendous boom in Bibles since Pearl Harbor. One publisher alone, for example, reports shipments in the first five months of this year at 1,642,000, with unfilled orders for another 1,000,000. His sales, incidentally, are not the result of government orders, but simply of increased demand through normal trade channels. According to "Publishers' Weekly," there is a strong expectation in the trade that Bibles and Testaments may soon have to be rationed. Bible publishers are also getting large orders from the armed forces, with pocket-sized books chiefly in demand.

But the biggest output is that of the American Bible Society, a non-profit organization devoted to the purpose of getting as many Bibles into the hands of as many persons as possible at the lowest possible price. In spite of labor shortage, restricted paper supply, priorities and scarcity of special materials, the society in 1942 produced the largest volume of Scriptures in its history. The total printed in all languages was 8,230,865, with this country alone taking 5,371,293.

Much has been said about the high military and economic quality of the American war effort. Here, if we may say so, is a revealing commentary on its moral and spiritual quality.

Mustering in the Woodlots

From the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

WHEN discussion turns on shortages of essential war materials, not so many in the community at large are apt to think of pulpwood. Yet far the greater part of domestically produced pulpwood is devoted to products essential to war-making.

The uses of pulpwood for war purposes are manifold. It is essential to the manufacture of smokeless powder, rayon for parachutes and medical dressings for the sick and wounded. Fibreboard containers are required for overseas shipment of food, supplies and munitions.

As the army grows in size and the range of its activities increases, demand for pulpwood becomes greater.

The manpower commission has therefore declared pulpwood cutting an essential activity. That makes full-time pulpwood cutters eligible to draft deferment and permits the granting to farmers with whom pulpwood cutting is a part-time activity credits toward draft deferment of farm help.

The threatened 1943 shortage of domestic pulpwood is 2,500,000 cords.

Making up this deficit is an entirely practicable proposition. Donald Nelson, head of the war production board, has estimated that it can be done if every one of the 3,800,000 farmers in the 27 pulpwood producing states will devote three extra days this year to cutting pulpwood. There is plenty obtainable from the forests and farm woodlands.

Mr. Nelson has approved the pulpwood production drive of American newspapers as a valued assistance to the efforts of WPB in that line.

The farmer with a woodlot or living near forested regions has a unique chance to serve the nation and turn idle trees into dollars in his community. It is a real salvage campaign, proposing to utilize for war resources which would otherwise be untouched.

If the cutting is done properly, woodland thinning which will result will add to the value of the forests.

By pointing out these opportunities and by organizing activities which might be overlooked, especially in remoter sections, a substantial contribution to the war effort is being made.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Aug 31, 1933.

That the Eighteenth amendment could be voted void within the next 10 weeks loomed as a possibility after voters representing nearly three-fifths of the nation's population had voted for its repeal.

Misses Audrey Bolander of South Prospect street, Ruth Edwards of East Church street, Christine Rieck of South Vine street and Sophia Mack of Bellevue avenue left for Chicago to attend the World's fair.

Babe Ruth, the home run king, joined the speculators who had been talking about his possible retirement from major league baseball. At New York he said, "I guess I might as well hang up my spikes...I can't sign up as a player next year. The legs won't stand it. I might get by at first base but not in the outfield. I'm through."

T. A. O'Leary, past exalted ruler of Marion lodge of Elks, was named on the executive committee of the Past Exalted Rulers association at the state meeting of the Elks in Sandusky.

The Martel chapter of the Future Farmers of America won third prize for its exhibit at the Ohio State fair. The exhibit consisted of articles made by farm shop pupils.

Rev. and Mrs. Irvin Kauffman were complimented with a farewell at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Gaster of North Main street. Rev. Kauffman, pastor of the Greenwood Evangelical church, was to leave the following week for New Zion, O., where he had accepted a pastorate.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Aug. 31, 1923.

M. L. Eidsess Jr. of Washington, superintendent of the division of stamps of the postoffice department, arrived in Marion to deliver 200,000 of the first Harding Memorial stamps to be placed on sale here the following day.

The city of Yokohama, Japan, was reported devastated in one of the worst earthquake disasters in the world's history.

Ministers and laymen attending the eleventh annual session of the West Ohio Methodist conference here held a memorial service at the Harding tomb in honor of the late president. Bishop William F. Anderson of Cincinnati, a personal friend of Mr. Harding, delivered a brief memorial address in which he characterized the late president as "President, statesman, world leader, friend and brother."

U. S. Pretentions About Post-War Europe Need Deflating, Columnist Asserts.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

ALTHOUGH we are advised in high quarters not to think about such things, the war is at a stage where it is impossible to postpone any longer the making of fundamental political decisions about Europe. The terms of the armistice which will be imposed upon Italy, upon Bulgaria, and eventually upon Germany, are an organic part of the military conduct of the war. They cannot be improvised after the enemy forces have surrendered unconditionally. For the terms of armistice with the Axis satellites will determine the next phase of the military operations against Germany. The terms of armistice for Germany will fix the zones of military occupation which will control the whole European settlement.

To leave these questions in abeyance would be the certain way to make impossibly difficult an orderly settlement in Europe. Without an orderly settlement in Europe, we and our allies will be unable to concentrate all our forces against Japan. A considerable force will be needed for diplomatic purposes in Europe if we have failed to reach a satisfactory political agreement.

In order to participate effectively in the pre-armistice negotiations with our partners the British, our allies, the Russians, and with the United Nations, our own first necessity is to clarify our own foreign policy. It is today, and has been for more than a year, in a most unsatisfactory condition. On the one hand our pretensions have been enormous: we have been claiming the right to say the last word about the boundaries of Europe about the character of the provisional European governments which are to follow the defeat of Hitler, about the diplomatic relations among neighboring European states. On the other hand, the means behind these pretentions are uncertain. we have an election in 1944, we have no agreed policy, not even in the most generalized terms, between the administration and congress, we have no formulation of the President's purposes, and we have no way, therefore, of saying to our allies, or even to our enemies, what the United States will certainly do.

Out of Balance

Our pretentions and our power are unbalanced, and we are unable, therefore, to play effectively the part we should play in the diplomatic negotiations which are now under way.

The event will show, I believe, that the President cannot make sure of continuing American support unless, taking to heart the lesson of Wilson's tragedy at Paris, he first reduces his pretensions in Europe. There is a limit to American intervention in the interior of the European continent, and that limit is fixed by the fact that when hostilities cease in Europe, though they continue in the Pacific, it will be impossible for him, or for his successor, to maintain for any long time a large American army of occupation in Europe.

Therefore, since we shall not be present in Europe with great military forces, we must not now persist in the initiation of our political claims in Europe. We must not claim to take a dominating part in the settlement of frontiers which we can not and shall not be able to guarantee. Instead we must leave such questions to those more directly concerned, playing the part of honest broker and conciliator among our allies. We must not take the unnecessary and presumptuous responsibility of guiding and controlling the provisional governments of liberated territories. We are not wise enough or powerful enough to do that, and our proper role is to encourage and support, to give friendly advice and help to our friends.

We are deluding ourselves if we think that we can write the precise formula under which France, or any other European nation, can pass through the transitional period. The best we can do is to work with the Frenchmen who will manage the transition.

If the President attempts too much in Europe, overestimating his influence, he will meet political defeat in Europe, and in that defeat he will, like Wilson, disorganize American support of a European policy. He will drag every European boundary question into the 1944 election if he does not have the wisdom to see that only by contracting the limits of our participation in European affairs can he make sure that our participation will be steady and enduring.

Limited Liability

For our people will almost certainly indorse a policy of limited liability. They will not indorse a policy of general and unlimited liability. The real alternative to the old isolation, then, is not general interventionism — it is the definition of our enduring interests as to Europe in relation to our own security and power. What Theodore Roosevelt called the policy of meddlesome Matties is no substitute for the ostrich policy.

The formulation of United States foreign policy is now the paramount business of the President. He has mastered the problems of the commander in chief, and the military conduct of the war is in good hands. It is in the realms of diplomacy that we are most dangerously weak, and for that reason the problem of the state department is now of transcendent importance. For while the President conducts foreign policy, he cannot hope to do it except through the state department.

The President's handling of the state department crisis will, therefore, be followed with deep attention and profound concern. It is not an easy problem for him to handle. For he is not free, or at least does not feel himself to be free, to take decisions and to choose men on the intrinsic merits alone.

LAG IN COAL OUTPUT BLAMED ON MINERS

By The Associated Press

...SHINGTON, Aug. 31—"En... absenteeism and indiffer... on the part of miners was ...med by a publication of soft ... operators today for a serious ...g in coal' production since the ...ing strike—a lag which Inte... Secretary Ickes says has re... coal output below the year's es... needs.

"It seems," said a bulletin of ... National Coal Association, ...ributed to its operator mem...ers, 'that the slogan 'no contract-...o sweat' is in full operation in ...me sections."

The same bulletin also took the government to task for its part ...n the coal shortage problem, saying.

"In order to be fair about it, ...oo, the record should also show ...hat the government itself since ...ast spring has not fully contrib...uted to the successful operation of ...he coal mines of this country. Threats of shortages and ration...ng plus implication that the gov...ernment is going to do this have ...not helped the situation at all.

"A solution to the manpower problem with enforcible direc...tives has not been forthcoming. And the labor situation grows steadily worse. All this, with a little more of this panic-crying out of Washington, and we may safely look for serious difficulty in getting sufficient coal to take care of the nation, whereas the government spokesmen might do more good by being less vocal, and if the miners go to work there will be no difficulties."

The NCA bulletin's view of the miners' state of mind since they failed to win a general wage increase coincided partly with the statement of Secretary Ickes in a national magazine this week that the miners are not working "at 100 per cent efficiency because of the bitterness growing out of the absence of a work contract."

BUCYRUS CONCERN IS NAMED IN SUIT

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31 — A temporary injunction to enforce compliance with war food administration regulations was sought in federal court today against C. Warnock and Co, Bucyrus, O., butter producer

In the first action of its kind in Ohio the company was charged with failing to allocate sufficient butter for armed services and lend-lease.

The complaint, brought in behalf of the food distribution administration by Willis L. Hotchkiss of the anti-trust division of the war frauds unit, department of justice, asked further that the company be required to furnish for the services and lend-lease the amount it failed to supply during May, June and July.

Hotchkiss said the Bucyrus firm failed to set aside any butter in February, March and April, and that it supplied only 30,000 pounds of a total of 266,000 it produced during the succeeding three-month period. WFA regulations called for all concerns producing 12,000 pounds of butter monthly to set aside 30 per cent during the February-April period, and 50 per cent during May-July.

The German broadcast was recorded by Reuters. No details were given.

Reggio Calabria lies just across the Strait of Messina from Sicily, and a landing to the "southeast" would have been on the very bottom of the toe of Italy.

The German reports brought no official comment in London and were viewed with skepticism

Even first graders are becoming war conscious, he said, as they pore over pictures in "Fighting Ships of the United States Navy" and similar books.

A series on "What the Citizen Should Know" about the Army, Navy, Marines and air forces, as well as scientific and technical books are reported to be pushing "blood and thunder" books into the background.

LANDON CRITICIZES U. S. FOOD PROGRAM

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Aug 31—Alf M Landon, criticizing the national administration's food policy as one which "decides this week what it thinks it will need next week," asked today for a "realistic, continuous program" visualizing the place of American agriculture in the world economy

"We need an intelligent program balancing livestock numbers with feed, encouraging rather than hampering the farmer," the 1936 Republican presidential nominee said in an address for delivery at the Kansas City Cooperative club

"That requires one sympathetic authority instead of many agencies working at 'cross-purposes.'"

Landon declared the United States couldn't provide food for all the world, "as outlined by the administration" 'and also produce the same amount of livestock as in the past

"The new dealers changed Thanksgiving, killed the little pigs and now they want to put us on the rice and fish diet of the orientals'

The country should demand an accounting of the vast quantities of food given being given away under lease-lend, he added.

"There is growing fear that the administration is fooling foreign peoples with the same expansive iridescent promises that it has tried on the American people in the past 10 years Therefore, we will suffer humiliating loss of national prestige and friendship.

confused and thought the limited had gone through and started to pull out of the main line to continue switching," he said. 'When I saw the other engine pulling out, I slammed on the limited's emergency brakes, but it was going too fast to avert a collision. The two locomotives met at the switch."

The limited, a 13-car train sheared off the front end of the switch engine and cracked the driving cylinder. The switch engine remained upright on the spur track.

The limited locomotive hurtled down the track and toppled broadside across two main line tracks and two spurs. Three coaches, the diner a baggage car and mail car were derailed.

Eye-witnesses described the horror scene. B. J. Shields of Buffalo said "it was a seething furnace. Some of the persons were in such pain they begged to die."

Sergeant Gives Account

Staff Sgt. Richard L. Franz of Marshfield, Ore. who suffered burns and cuts, declared:

"All I can remember is they slammed the brakes on and the train stopped. We didn't realize the train was wrecked. Then the steam pipe broke and everybody started screaming and began to pile out. The steam was so dense you couldn't see where you were going"

Meanwhile a crew of 300 attempted to clear the wreckage while railroad authorities began formal investigation. Passenger traffic was rerouted over the Erie line and freight over the Lehigh.

Several soldiers on the Lackawanna Limited helped rescue the passengers and broke windows to permit steam to escape.

Railroad officials said 23 persons died instantly and three expired today. Of the dead, 12 were identified. At three undertaking establishments were bodies of 18 women, three men and two girls

Al Driscoll, engineer on the switch engine, was reported to have escaped injury. He could not be reached for comment.

Engineer Leroy and the limited's fireman, Theodore Paladino, of Buffalo, suffered shock and bruises.

The tentative list of dead included:

Fred H. Meincke, Scranton, Pa., supervisor of locomotive operations for the D. L. & W. System, and Margaret Grambach, and Anne Chelko, 22, both of Cleveland.

ANCHOR FALLS. The right anchor point of the German southern front at Taganrog has been abandoned by the Nazis in the face of increasing Russian pressure including drives toward Poltava, Krasnograd and Stalino. Arrows indicate points of greatest Russian pressure. Shaded area is held by Germans.

Loss of Taganrog Puts Nazi Troops in Bad Position

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Never since Hitler broke his pledged word and attacked Russia has the position of his armies on the eastern front been so precarious as it has become with the loss of his right wing—Taganrog, on the sea of Azov.

That right wing is now like a pennant on a flag-pole, its fluttering loose end subject to the winds that sweep across it. Of course, that's a very unmilitary and exaggerated figure of speech, but it will have served its purpose if it emphasizes the danger of the Nazi position

Having taken this major stronghold, which is one of the vital ports of the gateway to the oil fields of the Caucasus, the Red army today is reported crushing its way steadily westward along the coast of the Sea of Azov. Small wonder that Marshal Stalin ordered a 124 gun salute in Moscow in honor of the Red arms, while all Russia exulted in the progress of their men at arms

Pincers Nip Taganrog

The fall of Taganrog was effected by the application of a pair of great pincers to the Hun line The Reds thrust fiercely into the German defenses forty miles above Taganrog and started a turning movement southward towards that port Meantime, another Russian force was smashing directly at the Nazi anchor from the east The Hitlerites had to run or be surrounded

Similar turning movements are being driven into the German line as far north as the Kharkov area, and some 800,000 Nazi troops are in danger of encirclement This Hitler's whole southern wing is being forced back, as has been forecast so many times in this column in recent weeks Having been torn loose from his Taganrog anchor, the fuehrer now is faced with two nasty alternatives

1. He must stage a heavy counter-attack in the Donets basin to the north of Taganrog and fling the Reds back, thus restoring his previous positions.

2. Failing in this, he must continue his withdrawal until his whole vast front from the sea of Azov northward to Leningrad, a distance of more than a thousand miles, has been pulled back under fierce Russian attack to the line of the great Dnieper river.

Counter Attack Likely

If the Germans have the strength they may be expected to counter-attack. I was chatting on this point with my colleague, General H. S. Sewell, the distinguished British military expert, and he remarked that "heavy counter-attacks must be expected as a sign of Nazi weakness"

That seems to sum the matter up neatly. If the invaders don't counter-attack, or if they make the attempt and fail, it will be significant as showing that the German war machine has lost a tremendous amount of that awful striking power which long terrified the world.

Should the Germans be forced to retire to the line of the Dnieper, one would expect them to make a back-to-the-wall stand to hold the Crimea. If you will refer to your maps (don't tell me that you haven't got them out) you will see that the Dnieper bulges out to the east, just north of the Crimea. You will note, too, that there's a railway which touches the point of this bulge by Zaporozhe and runs south through Melitopol into the Crimea.

It's logical to expect the Germans to try to hold along that railway, if they get pushed back that far. Should they be unable to maintain this position they would lose the Crimea, and the Black sea once more would be opened up in the north to the Russians—a grand windfall for the Reds Meanwhile Herr Hitler has all but lost his last toe-hold on the rich Donets basin, with its coal and far-reaching wheat fields

To complete the picture we should recognize that the Lil rains are near in Russia, and their arrival will slow the Russian operations. As a matter of fact one would think the Reds must be about due for a breather after their sensational exertions.

Committee Warns Of Newsprint Shortage

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug 31—A congressional committee investigating the newsprint shortage ordered publishers of U. S. and Canadian papers to inform today whether a warning that newspapers will be on a starvation basis by next May unless war needs and the increase program

The shortage can be ended and maximum production obtained with 40 additional workers for the pulp industry in this country and Canada, said Representative Lyle H. Boren (Dem., Okla.), committee spokesman in an Oreg. news interview

Bricker's Initiation Into Indian Tribe Stirs Speculation

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 31 — Gov. Bricker, home from a week's vacation in the Black Hills, denied today that a "jovial remark" made at a social gathering in Rapid City, S. D., Saturday constituted a declaration of candidacy for the presidency

Commenting on a statement he made upon his initiation into the Wahoo Indian Tribe, Bricker said it had no political significance and added, "if I intended to make such an announcement, I would not do it that way."

The governor was given an Indian name meaning "Horse that wants to run," and was quoted as saying, "I know it's not so much that the horse wants to run, but it's most important whether he's given the chance to run."

Bricker said his response to his initiation into the "Singing tribe of Wahoo," a Black Hills, S. D., publicity organization, was designed to fit into the "jovial spirit" of the occasion.

Former Gov. Ralph L. Carr of Colorado, one of several prominent Republicans who conferred with the Ohio governor during his stay at Sundance, Wyo., said in Denver last night he interpreted the Bricker remark as "an indication of his desire to obtain the Republican nomination in 1944." He declared other visitors at the Sundance ranch shared his view.

The Ohio chief executive and his party arrived by plane last night.

Miss Bradley And Richard G. Raup Wed at Columbus

The Maple Grove Methodist church in Columbus was the scene of the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Ann Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kersey E Bradley of Columbus, formerly of Marion, and Richard Guyton Raup, son of Mr and Mrs. Chandler P Raup of Springfield, Sunday at 4:30 p m. Rev. A. D. Byler officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Tall candelabra stood on either side of the chancel and four tall white baskets containing white gladioli and dahlias were arranged on the two steps on either side of the altar. Ribbon bows marked the pews for the immediate families.

Mrs. R. G. Raup

A half hour of organ music was provided before the ceremony by Mrs. J. C. Tavener of Springfield. While the candles were lighted by Miss Katherine Raup, sister of the groom, and William Bradley, brother of the bride, Mrs. Tavener played "Sweetest Story Ever Told," "Estrellita" was played during the ceremony, and the traditional wedding march and recessional were also played.

Miss Bradley who was given in marriage by her father was costumed in a princess style gown of ninon with a sweetheart neckline and long tight fitting sleeves. Lace gored inserts widened as they reached her train. A finger tip veil was held in place by a hand-made tiara of three white satin hearts outlined with pearls and rhinestones. A V was formed in the back of the tiara by solid seed pearls. The bride also wore a double strand of pearls, gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of white roses and gardenias.

Mrs. Louis E. Meister Jr. of 922 Westwood drive, sister of the bride was matron of honor, and Miss Helen Hutchinson of Columbus, sorority sister of the bride, and Miss Ann Goyer of Marion were bridesmaids. Miss Judy Bradley, youngest sister of the bride, and Miss Barbara Raup, youngest sister of the groom, served as junior bridesmaids.

The gowns of the matron-of-honor and bridesmaids were all in a pink shade and fashioned alike, buttoning down the back, with a sweetheart neckline and elbow length sleeves. Their skirts were ninon over taffeta and their shoulder length veils were held by pink hairbows of tulle and a daisy.

The bridesmaids carried lighted white tapers tied with tulle bows at the base from which white satin ribbons looped with blue forget-me-nots flowed. Mrs. Meister carried a bouquet of pink roses and blue forget-me-nots. Each wore a strand of pearls, a gift of the bride.

Dwight Raup attended his brother as best man and ushers were William Bradley of Milwaukee, brother of the bride, Louis Bookwalter of Springfield, cousin of the bridegroom, Carl A. Beckett of Columbus and William Bucher of Zanesville. The bridegroom's gifts to the ushers were ties and leather billfolds.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bradley chose a two-piece model of air force blue heavy crepe with Navy blue accessories. Mrs. Raup was attired in a rose crepe afternoon dress with blue accessories. Both wore shoulder corsages of gardenias.

A reception at Beechwold followed the ceremony with 100 guests in attendance. Mrs. William Bradley of Milwaukee, Mrs. William Mussen of Chicago, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Robert Shroats of Marion and Miss Betty Raup, sister of the groom, assisted in pouring.

When the couple left for a short wedding trip, Mrs. Raup was attired in a blue wool suit of air force blue and wearing the gardenias from her bouquet. She wore saddle brown and beige accessories.

Mrs. Raup is a graduate of Pleasant Township school and Ohio State university. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority and was a member of the faculty of the Prospect school last year.

Mr. Raup graduated from Springfield High school and Ohio State university and was a member of the polo team. He was also a member of the editorial staff of an agricultural newspaper at the university and is now associated with his brother in farming.

The Care and Use of Electrical Appliances in the Home

TAKE CARE OF YOUR VACUUM CLEANER

1—Empty dust bag after each cleaning.
2—Keep brushes free from hair and threads.
3—Replace brushes if tufts become worn.
4—Avoid running cleaner over pins, nails, coins or other metal objects. Pick them up by hand.
5—Clean brushes, wipe off other attachments, after use.
6—Be careful of the cord. Don't run the cleaner over it, or walk on it. Keep free from kinks.
7—Coil cord loosely on its rack. Don't hang on a nail.
6—Follow manufacturer's instructions for cleaning and oiling.

. . . the Vacuum Cleaner makes housecleaning easier

It's hard to keep up our wartime morale when surrounded by dingy, grimy furnishings. Besides, dust and dirt are great spreaders of germs. Thanks to modern vacuum cleaners, now you can have a spic and span house with much less work and in far less time than in the "good old days." That's doubly important in busy wartime days. But be sure to treat your "Vac" properly. There'll be no more for the duration. Use it properly, keep it in first-class shape and it will do a better job and last longer.

That afternoon, after going ... through the papers at the foreign ... commissariat, I went back to the ... hotel and typed a second letter to Stalin on the second front.

I folded up the letter at 6 P. M., and asked George Green to take it over to the Kremlin, 'to the same place as before.' He looked at the letter and said, 'I get it. And the same three questions.' 'That's right,' I said, 'and maybe we'll get the same answers.' 'A hundred to one says you don't,' said George. I was tempted to take him up on that, but let it go by reminding him he would have made the same bet on the previous letter, and sent him off to the Kremlin.

The next night I was sitting over the supper table in the Metropole at 10:10 when Palgunov telephoned to come to the Narkomindiel right away.

When I reached the press department at 10.30, Palgunov had not arrived. This I recognized as another symptom of a Stalin letter. Palgunov had obviously gone to the Kremlin to get it, and had not yet returned. I sat down to wait in the dimly lit, orange-papered room, under the pictures of Stalin, Molotov, and Kalinin. It was a long wait.

At midnight, the girl ushered me into his presence. There, on his desk, was the second letter from Stalin.

'Don't tell me you have another document for me' I exclaimed, in mock surprise.

Palgunov grinned: "You knew why I sent for you?"

'I suspected,' I said, and sat down before his desk.

'Here is a letter from Comrade Stalin, which I hereby transmit to you,' he said, in his most formal tone, and handed it to me.

I ran quickly over the authorized translation. It said:

Dear Mr. Cassidy,—

I am answering your questions which reached me on November 12th.

1. 'What is the Soviet view of the Allied campaign in Africa?'

Answer. The Soviet view of this campaign is that it represents an outstanding fact of major importance demonstrating the growing might of the armed forces of the Allies and opening the prospective desintegration of the Italo-German coalition in the nearest future.

The campaign in Africa refutes once more the skeptics who affirm that the Anglo-American leaders are not capable of organizing a serious war campaign. There can be no doubt that nobody but first-rate organizers could carry out such serious war operations as the successful landings in North Africa across the ocean, as the quick occupation of ports and wide territories from Casablanca to Bougie, and as the smashing of the Italo-German armies in the western desert, being effected so masterly.

2. 'How effective has this campaign been in relieving pressure on the Soviet Union, and what further aid does the Soviet Union await?'

Answer. It is not too soon to say to what an extent this campaign has been effective in relieving immediate pressure on the Soviet Union. But it may be confidently said that the effect will not be a many-sided and that a certain relief of pressure on the Soviet Union will result already in the nearest future.

But that is not the only thing that matters. What matters first of all is that since the campaign in Africa means that the initiative has passed into the hands of our Allies, the campaign changes radically the political and war situation in Europe in favor of the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition. That campaign undermines the prestige of Hitlerite Germany as the leading force in the system of Axis Powers and demoralizes Hitler's allies in Europe. That campaign releases France from the state of lethargy, mobilizes the Anti-Hitler forces of France and provides a basis for building up of an Anti-Hitler French army. That campaign creates conditions for putting Italy out of commission and for isolating Hitlerite Germany. Finally, that campaign creates prerequisites for the establishment of the second front in Europe nearer to Germany's vital centers which will be of decisive importance for organizing victory over Hitlerite tyranny.

3. 'What possibility is there of Soviet offensive power in the east joining the Allies in the west to hasten final victory?'

Answer. There need be no doubt that the Red army will fulfill its task with honor, as it has been fulfilling it throughout the war.

With respect

(Signed) J. STALIN

Moscow, November 13th, 1942.

From the state of the translation, it was apparent that that was what had delayed Palgunov. This was a complicated document, both in language and in meaning. I noticed it was on the same plain white paper as the first. But on the first letter, I had learned from a photographer who made a picture of it, Stalin's signature was stamped, not signed. This time, I saw, he had written the words, 'With respect, J. Stalin' himself, in a broad blue crayon, even bolder and more emphatic than his stamped signature.

'Do you have any questions?' Palgunov asked.

For once I thought I would extract some information from him. 'Yes,' I said, 'I take it from these letters are not read on how they are written and how you get them.' He said, 'When we always standing on end take a few inches more and he is not against. Never mind,' I said.

'I must warn you,' said Palgunov, that this letter will appear in tomorrow morning's papers.'

'All right,' I said, 'I'll send it right away.'

Out in the press room, I went to work. I felt [illegible] about this job. It had been my own idea, not New York's. I had kept it to myself, delivering it exclusively. And this time it was good news. I didn't tell him I did not have the chain reaction the first letter had produced. There were no questions raised in the House of Commons. Just as in the lives of great men, it was a big story when they fell ill and not so big when they recovered, so it was with the story of Allied relations. But it was a great pleasure to report that recovery.

I have called this chapter 'Happy Ending.' Perhaps it should have been 'Happy Beginning,' for establishment of a decent understanding was only a beginning. Next had to come actual understanding.

TOUCH OF SUNNY SOUTH IN THIS VICTORY GARDEN

Cotton Blossoms Adorn Grounds on Vernon Heights.

By stretching their imagination a bit, residents of the vicinity of the Victory garden at the home of Dr. L. E. Brady on Vernon Heights might easily imagine they are in the sunny south these days. Bordering the garden is a fine growth of cotton now in blossom and folks who have seen it say it is very pretty and something worth seeing.

Growing a bit of cotton each year has been one of the pleasures of Sherman Smith, 78, of Park street, who has planted the seed which he brought from the south, in the Brady garden for many seasons. It is the first it has ever been, this year," Mrs. Frances J. Hurst, daughter of Dr. Brady says.

★ REPORTING WARTIME ACTIVITIES OF THE OHIO FUEL GAS COMPANY ON THE HOME AND INDUSTRIAL FRONTS ★

Cooperation Asked In Conserving Your Use of Gas

As fall approaches more and more will be heard about the conservation of all forms of fuel and power by domestic and commercial customers in order to keep war industries producing at top speed. The Gas Company will be no exception in the participation of this program.

In normal years steel and manpower are available for drilling additional wells and extending gas transmission lines to new sources of supply to replace the gas used up in the past season. This year only enough materials were available to make a partial replacement of the exhausting supply.

Storage Helpful

Your gas company is more than fortunate in having established underground storage fields several years ago. Gas is brought in from Texas and West Virginia during warm weather when transmission lines normally would not be operating at capacity and the gas is forced back into Ohio wells which are closer to the markets. As the housewife cans food in summer for winter consumption, so does The Gas Company "can" gas for next winter when you will want it in larger quantities.

Even with these precautions for providing gas for cold weather, every care on the part of the customer is needed to conserve in their uses of gas. Advertisements suggesting savings in gas will be published from time to time. If every customer accepts his responsibility in using only the gas he actually needs, none need be seriously inconvenienced and there will be enough to meet all the essential requirements of war industries.

A few suggestions for saving gas could be put into practice at once. Keep burners adjusted so they will produce maximum heat with a minimum of gas. When the cooking has started, turn back the gas to a point just high enough to maintain the cooking. If more than one hot dish is prepared on the top burners, use the oven instead to save gas. Repair leaky hot water faucets. Clean out the sediment from the bottom of hot water tanks frequently. Use the plug in the basin, tub or sink instead of washing in running hot water. Heat only the rooms that you actually need for living. Shut off guest rooms, sun porches, recreation rooms and other space in your home that are not in daily use. Savings like these will save a lot of gas and incur no hardship on the family.

MAKE YOUR OLD APPLIANCES LAST

The appliances in your home—your range, refrigerator, washing machine, iron, yes, even your water heater and furnace must last for the duration.

These indispensable items are seldom found in our stores any more. Some are not being made at present, others are Victory models which the government has allowed manufacturers to produce for defense homes.

Another reason you are urged to keep your appliances in good working order is that repair parts are scarce, and repair shops have insufficient help. Therefore the cost is frequently high.

Get better acquainted with your appliances. Oil moving parts regularly, clean them after each use and do any minor repairs yourself as soon as they are needed. This will save your time and money, and help speed our war effort.

Seven Basic Foods For A Healthful Home Front

Not since pioneer days has it been so important that we raise and preserve our own produce. Huge shipments of food must go to our armed forces, to our allies and to the starving people of invaded countries. A great number of foods is scarce and some will possibly become more scarce.

Your family must be served a balanced and varied diet throughout the fall and winter months. You must keep in mind that the meals you prepare for your family should be nutritious meals—three substantial meals each day based on the right food.

There are seven basic foods essential to good health. To keep your family in trim see that they get some from each of the following groups each day.

Group 1—Green and yellow vegetables — some raw — some cooked—frozen or canned.

Group 2—Oranges, Tomatoes, Grapefruit or Raw Cabbage or Salad Greens.

Group 3—Potatoes and other Vegetables and Fruits — raw, dried, cooked, frozen or canned.

Group 4—Milk and milk products—fluid, evaporated, dried milk or cheese.

Group 5—Meat, Poultry, Fish or Eggs—or Dried Beans, Peas, Nuts and Peanut Butter.

Group 6—Bread, Flour and Cereals—natural whole-grain or enriched or restored.

Group 7—Butter and fortified margarine (Vitamin A added).

Then, eat other foods you like also. By practicing these simple rules, you can do your part right in your own home, in aiding the war effort.

BUY BONDS

The Third War Bond Drive starts September 9. Our government is asking for the use of all our available cash that can be spared for a few years. For borrowing this money, Uncle Sam will return to us 25% more than we loaned. Help our fighting men and our country by buying an extra War Bond in September.

Gas Is Vital to War Production

Back in peacetime years industries were permitted to use gas in their manufacturing processes only so long as the domestic customers did not need the entire available supply. This was provided for by law and in the contracts between the industries and The Gas Company. War has placed the shoe on the other foot. Today war industries are and must remain preferred customers because the goods they produce are so essential to Victory.

Nearly every industry along the Company's lines that uses heat in its processes, uses gas—the fuel that best meets all requirements. These industries number over a thousand in a state that ranks among the leaders in War Production. Also it ranks among the top of those states that have received the largest share of Army-Navy E Awards.

The Gas Company is in constant touch by telephone with the War Production Board in Washington, arranging a supply of gas that will meet the requirements of all essential industries. Red tape goes out the window in speeding these transactions. Plant A is going to step up its production and will need 30,000 more feet of gas an hour. Can we adjust the load on that line to handle it? Company B must have a new plant in a certain area. Can this line serve it or is there another line in that area that can accommodate it better. Can plant C connect to the lines for a million feet a day if it provides a standby fuel for emergencies? These questions require speedy solutions. Yet as important as they are, the WPB and The Gas Company complete these arrangements without disrupting service to the regular domestic and commercial gas customers. It is, however, essential that the regular consumers heed the warning to conserve in their uses of gas so that these war industries can receive gas in the amounts they require.

War, by its emergency nature, seldom is run on a complete efficiency basis. On the other hand, it is only fair to explain your gas company's refreshing experience in this war. The gas division of the War Production Board is staffed by experienced men working long hours with their sleeves rolled up. Their big job is to keep gas flowing to war industries without disrupting the supply for civilian necessities. The Gas Company is pledged to the same purpose. To this time the cooperation between government, gas company and customers has been excellent. Let's keep it that way.

527 GASCO Employees In Armed Service

The Gas Company is rightly proud of the 527 Gasco men and women serving with Uncle Sam's armed forces.

Knowing these men and women intimately—having worked with them many years—we know that they are giving their country the same loyal, efficient service that they gave when in The Gas Company's employ.

The loss of 527 trained persons handicaps any company. We're no exception. In many instances it has been impossible to find other trained men and women to take their place. Those of our employees who remain on the job are now doing their best to maintain the service The Gas Company has offered customers in the past. It isn't the same smooth efficient service we've prided ourselves on, but it's the very best we can offer under the circumstances.

Until the day when these trained men and women in the armed services of our country return, we hope our thousands of customers will understand why the efficiency of our service has been impaired.

Vegetable Cookery Chart Free

We must all be vegetarians more often during war-time. And even though some meat cuts are scarce, we can get many vitamins from correctly cooked vegetables.

The Gas Company has a "Vegetable Cookery Chart" available which will assist you in preparing and cooking vegetables so they will retain the most flavor and the most vitamins.

The booklet is free at the Gas Company.

Also available are monthly nutrition bulletins, Home Canning booklets and recipes. Always think of The Gas Company Nutrition Center when you have some questions about your meals.

Today's Miracle Food — Soybeans

By MARY HELDMAN
Home Service Representative

Soybeans are nature's own solution to present-day food rationing problems. The soybean is by no means a new food. The Chinese discovered its value over 5000 years ago. They used it extensively to replace butter, milk, eggs and meat in their diet—and in grateful appreciation called it a "gift from heaven." As a protein food, soybeans are comparable to meat. They are rich in Vitamins A, B, D and E and contain such important minerals as calcium, phosphorus copper and iron. Fresh from the garden, green soybeans when boiled and buttered are delicious and taste very much like fresh lima beans. Soybean sprouts can serve as a fresh vegetable during much of the year, are especially enjoyed in salads and may be used with or without cooking.

Soybeans dried may be cooked and prepared similarly to navy beans. Soybean flour is richer than wheat flour and can be used to replace it in small amounts when making quick breads, cookies and cakes.

Biscuits

1 cup soybean flour
1 cup bread flour
4 tsp. shortening
3 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
3 tsp. baking powder
¾ cup milk

Sift flours, salt, sugar and baking powder. Add fat and rub lightly between fingers until well blended. Add milk and mix. Roll out half-inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut out and bake in oven at 400 degrees F. for 12 minutes.

Honey Soybean Ice Box Cookies

1 cup honey
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup soybean butter (or lard)
½ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
3 cups bread flour
2 cups soybean flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1 cup chopped nuts

Mix, roll into cylinders, chill for one or two days to allow for ripening of the dough. Cut into thin slices and bake in an oven at 400 degrees F. for 9 to 10 minutes on well-greased pans.

Baked Soybeans

4 cups cooked soybeans
2 cups tomato pulp
½ medium sized onion—minced
2 slices green pepper—cut fine
3 large stalks celery—cut fine
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. molasses
Bacon

Cook vegetables, add beans, salt and molasses. Cover with thin slices of bacon. Bake slowly.

Directions for Cooked Soybeans

In cooking soybeans, they should be soaked in plenty of water for 3 or 4 hours and cooked until soft. It generally takes longer to cook soybeans than navy beans.

To Cook Green Soybeans

Soybean pods may be gathered when the beans are full size but in the doughy stage. The pods are dipped into boiling water for 3 to 5 minutes and then the beans can be pressed out of the pod very easily. These are cooked and served like green limas.

SAVE EXCESS FATS

Housewives, this is your war job. It is up to you to save all the excess fats you have. Even though the fats have become rancid, they can still be used in manufacture of war explosives.

All you have to do is strain the drippings, store them in a cool place and sell them to your meat dealer.

38 Harding Gridders Ready for Start of Fall Practice at Stadium Field Tomorrow

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Thirty-eight Harding High school football aspirants are scheduled to break sod in the opening fall practice of the 1943 season at Harding stadium tomorrow in a two and a half hour session.

Jayvee squad members were issued equipment at the stadium today. There, also in readiness at the field as proper and at the nearby Harding practice field for use, is ample practice in preparation for the '43 season opener set to be played against the Mansfield Tigers Friday, Sept 17.

Head Coach Vic Dorris, Line Coach Joe Petrich and their assistant, Ralph Kelly will have no time to waste in whipping into shape the '43 Presidential edition, robbed by the draft and other unusual circumstances brought on by the war. The squad opens with the ferocious Tigers only 17 days hence.

The Harding roster has been cut one in number since Dorris sent out formal invitations to 39 prospective candidates on Aug. 14. Three have withdrawn from the squad since the invitations were issued. They are Fred Levsen, junior fullback, who was a first string performer in that position for the Harding JayVee team last year, Vic Baker, senior lineman, and Carl Hatbolt, sophomore gridder who hailed from Central Junior High school.

However, Dorris has selected two more Harding boys to bring the squad up to only one shy of the originally intended complement of 39. Those two additions are Bob Virden, senior this year, and Walter Bartlett, junior. Virden probably will be placed in a backfield spot while chunky Bartlett has been assigned to a guard post by Dorris.

Fazio Is Captain

The almost two score of President gridiron warriors will be directed on the field by Captain Charley Fazio, senior tackle. He was elected by a wide margin to succeed Keith Williams as jayvee captain at the annual football banquet last fall.

Tomorrow's initial drill will get under way about 9:30 a. m. and will last until about 11. Dorris said this workout session would not be all for the summer-softened Presidents. Another session will be held from 2:30 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The policy of holding these two daily practice sessions probably will be followed until school opens a week from Monday.

Ray "Doc" McCracken, veteran head football and basketball coach at Virgil Heights Junior High school this summer in shift in the junior high and high school coaching system, will be on hand to help the three Harding coaches tomorrow. Frank Pierson of Mansfield, who was appointed to the head gridiron and cage membership of Central Junior at the same time as McCracken's selection, is expected to help with Harding practices some time before school starts. After that, both he and McCracken undoubtedly will have their hands full with their respective junior high elevens.

Start On Conditioner

Primary aim of tomorrow's practices will be to work the Presidents back into the hardy condition needed to withstand the gruelling 1943 schedule, probably the toughest in Harding history. Numerous calisthenics and other gymnastics will be employed in both sessions tomorrow as conditioners.

Other drilling will include thorough review of grid fundamentals, which will consist of the following: proper stance, line charging, footwork for backs and linesmen alike; timing, punting, placekicking, passing and ball handling.

The last phase of backfield work will consist mainly of practice on reverses and spinners.

Dorris probably will concentrate mostly on the President backfield, Petrich on the line from the guards in and Kelly on the ends. Kelly's duties will correspond to those of Howard Hoffman, whom he succeeded as Harding assistant coach.

No pre-season practice games have been scheduled by Dorris but scrimmaging will start probably next week, he said.

Troops Beat Indians with Boudreau on Mound

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31—Cleveland's third place Indians are back on the home reservation today, with two days of rest ahead before starting a stretch drive for the American league's second money.

Yesterday the Redskins lost an Army camp exhibition at Camp Grant, Ill., 8-4, when Manager Lou Boudreau nominated himself for pitching duties to save his regular flingers, and sent pitcher Vernon Kennedy to shortstop.

The boy boss gave up three hits and four runs in the first inning, and Ray Poat finished, yielding seven more blows. Kennedy erored twice in the infield. The Tribe collected seven hits, one of them a two-run homer by Jimmy Grant in the eighth.

Chicago's White Sox, beaten 14 times in 19 games with the Indians this year, invade Municipal stadium Thursday night to open the final 1943 meeting of the two teams.

Old Timers' Team To Play Universal At Lincoln Sept. 8

The old timers' softball game definitely has been set for Wednesday, Sept. 8, at Lincoln park. The old timers, instead of playing an all-star city league team as originally announced, will meet Universal Cooler, newly crowned city softball champ. All proceeds from the game, however, still will go to the Marion Canteen as originally planned.

Elmer Smith, promoter of the old timers' squad, said today the team will hold its initial practice at McKinley park at 6:30 Friday night. All those former players who have already agreed to play with the old timers and any more inactive local softballers who wish to play are asked to attend the practice.

The name of Robert Kelly, former St. Mary softballer, Dick Burkrew, member of the old Reformed church team, and Jack Harvin, formerly of the Eagles squad, have been added to the old timers' roster. This raises to 18 the number of old timers definitely lined up for the Cooler contest.

John Clark, who in addition to managing the old timers' squad also will pilot the All-Stars against Cooler Thursday night, said today his all-star team would not hold any practices until the night of the game. However, he has asked the 16 stellar performers he chose to comprise the "dream team" to be at Lincoln park "considerably" before the starting time of 6:30 Thursday night.

Springfield Will Play in Tournament Finals

By The Associated Press

MILES CITY, MONT., Aug. 31—Unable to complete their game last night because of weather, the New Orleans Jax and the Richfields of Minneapolis will meet at 2:30 p. m. (MWT) today in the American Legion junior baseball world series.

Winner of the game will play the Springfield, O., club tonight to decide the national championship.

The game last night was called at the end of the fourth. Neither team had scored.

In yesterday afternoon's contest, the Richfields beat Springfield 9-5 in the double-elimination tournament.

Fireballer Bob Danielson, on the mound for Minneapolis, held Springfield to 10 scattered hits, and himself went on the offensive in the eighth with a homerun that scored a mate ahead.

Bob Davis and Eugene Burg of Springfield were nicked for 13 hits by the Richfields.

Last Bowling Class at Palace Lanes Tonight

The sixteenth and final session of the weekly singles bowling classic for the 1943 summer season will be held at the Marion Recreation Center on South Prospect street tonight. Regular league bowling for the 1943-44 season is scheduled to start next Tuesday night at both the Marion lanes and the Palace Recreation Center, West Center street. Maynard Snyder will be aiming for his seventh victory in the summer classic tonight. He has captured the weekly crown for the past three weeks in succession.

Right Now Yankees Favored To Win Series from Cards

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

A month ago the St. Louis Cardinals were being talked of as probable favorites in the World series, but if the annual classic were opening now the New York Yankees almost certainly would be odds-on choices.

They probably will be when the series opens in October, too.

The Yankees have been picking up momentum on the home stretch while the Cardinals have been slowing down. The difference between them was shown again yesterday when the Yankees beat the Boston Red Sox 3-1 while St. Louis split a doubleheader with the Pittsburgh Pirates in the only games played in the major leagues.

The Pirates won the opener, 4-3, but the Cardinals came back with an 8-3 triumph.

A New York Yankees rookie Charley Wensloff pitched four-hit ball and Roy (Stormy) Weatherly punched the winning ticket with a two-run homer, his third in two days.

This gave the Yanks their 13th consecutive series and a record of having won 42 out of 59 games since the streak started on July 5.

They now have plenty of power and good fielding along with the best pitching in the major leagues with a staff led by Spud Chandler, Ernie Bonham and Wensloff. Chandler has won 17 games, and Bonham and Wensloff each 12.

The Cardinals have their spectacular speed and sharp hitting, but their fielding has faltered and their pitching has become uncertain.

In losing four of their last six games they have made 11 errors, five yesterday and at least one in every contest.

They made 11 hits in the 10-inning first game with the Pirates and 13 in the nightcap, but Rookie Alpha Brazle, who had not been beaten in any of his previous National league starts, gave Pittsburgh a dozen blows in the opener and his teammates made three critical errors.

Harry Brecheen held the Buccaneers to eight safeties in the second game and the Redbirds wrapped up the decision with a five-run flurry in the third inning.

Appling Takes Batting Lead from Wakefield

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—After several weeks of battling Dick Wakefield of Detroit for the American league batting lead, Luke Appling of the Chicago White Sox has taken control with a comfortable margin again.

The Tiger Rookie was on top a week ago with a .330 average, but since then has dropped five points while the veteran of the White Sox has spurted upward from .329 to .337.

This pair apparently has the hitting race in the junior circuit strictly between themselves because not another regular in the entire league is above .300 level.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals continued to set an unapproachable pace in the National league with a .353 average.

Milwaukee's Lead Cut to Half Game Over Tribe

By The Associated Press

Milwaukee dropped its fourth straight game last night when Minneapolis grabbed a 5-3 decision to shave the Brewers' lead in the American Association to a mere half-game over Indianapolis.

The Indians will have a chance to take over the top if they can beat Toledo twice in a double-header today. Milwaukee has a single game at Minneapolis.

Frank Danneker's two-run homer in the seventh inning off relief Pitcher Prince Oana broke a 3-3 stalemate and provided the winning margin for the Kels last night.

The Milwaukee - Minneapolis game was the only Association contest scheduled yesterday.

UNIVERSAL TO PLAY TIFFIN TONIGHT

Universal Cooler's industrial league and city champions will face the Tiffin Route Pursuits, runner-up in the recent district tournament here, in the second game of an international tourney at Tiffin at 8 o'clock tonight. In tonight's opener, at 7 o'clock, the smooth split-finger pitching of Millard Burgner will meet Cooler

Probable starting mound foe for Cooler will be Johnny Schenker, Greater All-Star hurler. Ken Altman, 185-pound sophomore twirler, is expected to face the Pursuits. Altman and Schenker put on a brilliant exhibition of four-hit pitching in a recent final game with Altman finally winning out, 1 to 0. The All-Stars could not get a single hit off him, while Tiffin batters found Schenker for one lone safety.

Another important addition to the Universal lineup will be Fritz Walters, Coca-Cola shortstop, adjudged by many local fans to be the leading Marion softball player.

Two more Tiffin tourney games are scheduled for tomorrow night: Tiffin National Machinery vs. Fremont at 7:30 and Fostoria Screws vs. Port Clinton at 9.

Semi-finals have been set for Sept. 7 and Finals for Sept. 9.

67, Mostly Lightweight F... Turn Out for O.S.U. Grid

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 31—A lightweight 67-man Ohio State football squad headed today into 25 days of hard work preparing for the opening game against the powerful Iowa Seahawks and Head Coach Paul E. Brown declared it "isn't know about the quality, but we really have quantity."

"Most of the kids are small, maybe too small for Big Ten football, but we'll find that our prexy quirk, the memory of last years Big Ten and national championship team aided.

Most of the candidates are 17 or 18-year-old freshmen—some eligible for induction into the armed forces—and only six are veterans of last years squad.

The largest number of candidates to report to Coach Brown since he came to the university two years ago, it is the smallest squad physically in many years.

Examinations, uniform fitting and the like were attended to yesterday. Field work starts tomorrow for the Sept. 25 date with the Seahawks here.

Four of the returning veterans are deferred in the draft, two because of punctured eardrums, one because of varicose veins and one because of asthma. Another is married and has a child.

Bill Willis, 205-pound tackle from Columbus East, was the only regular from last years championship team to report yesterday.

The only other candidates who played with the Bucks a year ago were Gordon Appleby, second string center from Massillon; Cecil Souders, reserve end; Jack Dugger, third string tackle, Paul Selby, sub quarterback, and Bill Hackett, guard, who saw only limited service because of in-

Reds and Cubs Open Series at Crosley Field

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 31—The Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs tangle under the lights at Crosley Field tonight to open a three-game series.

Bucky Walters, who found the going rough early in the season but who lately has returned to winning form, will be on the mound for the Reds. Paul Derringer, a former Redleg, is Cub Manager Jimmy Wilson's choice.

With the first place St. Louis Cardinals out of reach for all teams in the loop except the Reds, the only thing left for the others to shoot at is the second place money. The Reds are holding the second-place spot four games ahead of the Pittsburgh Pirates and four-and-a-half up on the Brooklyn Dodgers.

More Axis Fighters Oppose Allied Bombers

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 31—Newly-massed concentrations of enemy fighters battled U. S. Marauder bombers and escorting Lightnings yesterday in the bitterest combat of the air war over Italy.

The medium bombers blasted railroad yards at Aversa north of Naples.

Seventy to 75 Germans and Italians jumped the allied fleets near the coast and over the target, and a great running battle continued afterward more than 100 miles out to sea, with the axis losing 17 planes.

Flying Fortresses meantime smacked the Viterbo airfield north of Rome with a heavy rain of bombs, allied headquarters announced today.

Formations of Mitchells with Lightning escort and RAF Wellingtons staged a day and night assault on freight yards at Civita Vecchia northwest of Rome.

Other medium, light and fighter bombers raided railway objectives in southern Italy during the day, and fighter-bombers struck at communicaUons in Sardinia.

In all, 21 enemy planes were downed, with 15 allied aircraft reported ...

The Fortresses, meeting comparatively light opposition, strewed bombs throughout dispersal areas at the strategic Viterbo airdrome 40 miles above Rome, leaving hangars and other buildings in flames. They shot down two enemy planes.

At Civita Vecchia, a rail junction for the Rome-Leghorn route and industrial town of Terni, the Mitchells knocked out tracks in the northwest section and scored direct hits on the railroad station, warehouses, and locomotive sheds.

(The Italian communique, broadcast by Rome and recorded by The Associated Press, said 40 allied planes were downed over the Rome and Naples area. The German radio said Nazi fighters destroyed 26 out of 60 attackers near Naples.

(German planes in a new attack on Augusta harbor in Sicily damaged an allied merchant ship and hit several landing barges, the Italians added.)

as the pincers movements which resulted in the fall of the German bastions of Orel and Kha--kov earlier this summer.

German broadcasts dismissed the defeat as a "strategic withdrawal"—the same terms used to describe the fall of Kharkov.

Taganrog is the sixth major German stronghold to fall to the Russian armies since they turned the abortive German push which started July 5 in the central sector into a Red army offensive.

Orel, the first, was followed quickly by Belgorod and Karachev. After stubborn resistance the Nazis lost Kharkov and a new push in the central sector encompassed Sevesk.

Action on other fronts found the Soviet drive in Bryansk, important rail junction and German base 200 miles southwest of Moscow, gaining momentum with the Russian communique announcing gains of six to 13 miles and the capture of 50 villages.

17 Matches Played in Two Tourneys at Country Club

Seventeen first round matches in the Marion Country Club championship tournament and President's handicap tourney have been completed. Several contests still remain to be played even though the first round deadline was Sunday midnight. Club officials have extended the deadline in the case of several golfers, who for numerous reasons could not play off their matches by the scheduled initial round deadline.

In the club championship, first round results posted on the caddy-house score sheet are as follows: Leo Groll over Judge H. S. Young, 2 up, Jack Waring over Joe Slanser, 2 and 1, E. G. Haight over Dr. D. W. Brickley 2 and 1, R. C. Isaly over R. T. Lewis, no score posted, Henry Lautensleger over Bill Ulmer 2 and 1, J. B. Bray over Marion Cheney 4 and 3, and John Glackin over Tom Rayburn 4 and 3.

President's handicap outcomes in the first round are as follows: Judge H. S. Young over Marion Cheney 5 and 4, R. T. Lewis over Arthur Cheney, no score posted, Joe Slanser over Tom Rayburn 3 and 2, Jim Mayden over Jack Waring 2 up, J. B. Bray over Dale Rose 1 up, E. C. Dee over R. C. Isaly 1 up, Ben Peterson over George Wright 3 and 2, John Dowler and Dr. R. E. Eicher tie, Dr. W. A. Dennis over George Alber 2 and 1, and Herb Petrich over John Glackin 4 and 3.

Dowler and Eicher must replay their first round match this week. Because of a special President's handicap tourney rule, all matches tied at the end of the regular 18 holes must go another full 18. In most match play tournaments, 18-hole deadlocks result in sudden-death play-offs of only one or two holes.

Second round deadline for both the club championship and President's event is still next Sunday as originally scheduled, Pro Andy K. Dewar said today.

Y Physical Program Launched

Committee Sets Groundwork for 1943-44 Activities; Supervisory Appointments Made.

The machinery for the 1943-44 Y.M.C.A. physical program was set into motion at a reorganization meeting of the Y physical education committee at the Y last night.

Appointment of six committeemen to supervisory positions in the main subdivisions of the physical set-up highlighted the meeting, the first held by the committee since last spring. Appointments were made by Dr. D. W. Brickley, committee chairman.

Following are the departmental assignments made at the meeting. Robert Kelly, business men's volleyball; Robert Scott, industrial basketball and young men's basketball; Ralph Carhart, tennis, ping pong, and badminton; John Makeever, boys' physical program; Elmer Shaw, softball; and Kenneth Fields, Y athletic equipment.

To Prepare Program

All these men are expected to commence immediately on studying the status of their respective departments and to present their program for the coming year to the committee at next month's meeting. After the committee has given its approval, the programs of the six phases of Y physical activities will be submitted to the Y board of directors at its monthly meeting.

Scott's duties will consist of organizing the Industrial basketball league, composed of various local factories and concerns, and setting up other basketball activities for Marion's young men. Makeever will supervise the 1943-44 physical program of Y boys' groups, composed of boys under high school age. The Friendly Indians, Gra-Y, and Pioneer clubs are made up of practically all Y members of elementary and junior high school age.

Equipment Appraisal

Fields' position as equipment-supervisor entails many responsibilities. First of all, he must make a survey of the equipment on hand at the Y.M.C.A. and then draw up a list of new equipment which should be purchased and repairs to be made on the old. These equipment proposals must, of course, meet with approval of the physical committee and the board of directors.

Chairman Brickley began last night's meeting with a review of the committee's responsibilities and its place in the community. He explained the importance of the duties of the committee and what problems and unprecedented situations it might encounter during the coming year, undoubtedly to be accented by an increased tempo in Y physical activities.

Kelly also was appointed by Chairman Brickley to take charge of a new Y.M.C.A. campaign to secure volunteer leaders, who would relieve Marion Mewhorter, program director, of some of the burden he has shouldered during recent months as a result of manpower shortage. These volunteer leaders would not take over supervisory positions in the physical program but instead would step into jobs as leaders in actual class activities.

Mr. Kelly will make a report of progress in the leadership campaign at the next committee meeting.

Softball Interest Up

Elmer Shaw gave a report of the recently completed softball season. He pointed out that although there were fewer teams and individual participants in the game this year, interest nevertheless increased as shown by the attendance figures.

It was decided last night that meetings of the committee would be held the third Monday of each month.

GALION—Cpl. Harold Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Young of 1277 Harding Way East, who arrived home Sunday morning on a week-end furlough from Fort Knox, Ky., was stricken with appendicitis later in the day and taken to City hospital. At 6 o'clock in the evening he was taken to St. Hayes hospital, Columbus, by an ambulance from Camp Millard, Bucyrus.

against Japan must of necessity be centered in India.

He expressed extreme confidence in Vice Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, the new allied commander in chief in that theater.

Churchill paid tribute to Canada's large contribution in the war, including the supply of munitions valued at not less than $2,000,000,000 and donated by Canada to the common cause.

Speaking of Britain's 20-year treaty with Russia, the prime minister declared, "You may be sure that we British are resolved to do our utmost to make that good with all our strength and national steadiness." He continued:

"It would not have been suitable for Russia to be represented at this Anglo-American conference, which apart from dealing with the immediate operation of our inter-mingled and interwoven armed forces in the Mediterranean and elsewhere, would largely if not mainly be concerned with heating and inflaming the war against Japan, with whom the Soviet government has a five-year treaty of non-aggression.

"It would have been an embarrassing invitation for us to send, but nothing is nearer to the wishes of President Roosevelt and myself tha nto have a three-fold meeting with Marshal Stalin.

"If that has not yet taken place, it is certainly not because we have not tried our best or have not been willing to lay aside impediment and undertake immense journeys for that purpose."

CRESTLINE—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hohek of North Henry street are the parents of a son at Emergency hospital Monday.

STOCKS STRIKE RECOVERY NOTE

Industrial Favorites Lead Best Rally Effort in Last Three Weeks.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—Industrial favorites today led the stock market on its best recovery swing in about three weeks.

Advancing tendencies appeared at the start and, with activity expanding moderately, gains of fractions to more than a point were well distributed. Near the fourth hour profit taking stemmed the push and reduced best quotations in a number of cases.

Dome Mines and Consolidated Laundries were among a handful of issues getting into high ground for 1943. In front were Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich, Pepsi-Cola, Western Union, Homestake Mining, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse, American Telephone and Standard Oil (N.J.). Forward moves in the early ... Aluminum of America, Cities Service, Electric Bond & Share, Lake Shore, Packard, Phoenix Securities and Humble Oil.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31—A strong undertone developed in wheat today despite rather cautious and quiet trading and prices inched forward to the best levels since early in July.

Trade was slowed by uncertainty over the amount of the notices of intention to deliver wheat on September contracts which were scheduled to be filed after the market closed.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"YOU what!" my father and I exclaimed in unison.

Then my father came up to Ronald, and taking his clinging hands from my shoulders, put him into a chair.

"Get your breath, lad," he said indulgently as though speaking to an excited child, "and then tell us all about this."

"You don't believe me!" Ronald's voice rose hysterically. "I can see you don't! But it's true, I tell you! I was as near to her as I am to you, and do you think I wouldn't know her no matter how she was disguised?"

Ronald Despondent

He buried his face in his hands, and across his bowed head my father's eyes mirrored the compassion which was in mine for the overwrought boy. Evidently the Chief believed Ronald was suffering from an hallucination.

But I was not so sure, although I knew that intuition not reason, was behind my impression that the boy might be speaking the truth.

My father made a little dismayed gesture which told me he wished me to deal with Ronald, and I leaned forward and put my hand on his arm.

"Dear boy," I said coaxingly, "we have not said we don't believe you. We are simply so shocked and astounded by what you have told us that we do not know what to think. Won't you pull yourself together, and tell us just where and how you saw the girl you believed to be Marion?"

He took his face from his hands and looked at me with such tragic suffering in his eyes that my throat muscles contracted with pity. Then, squaring his shoulders as though lifting the weight of a heavy burden, he began to speak slowly but without hysteria.

Thinking of Other Things

"I was walking down Fifth Avenue just before I telephoned you," he said. "I had several errands to do, and for a wonder I wasn't even thinking about Marion for the minute, although I guess you know she isn't out of my thoughts very many minutes of the day."

"Yes, indeed we know, Ronald," I said softly, and he hurried on.

"The red lights went on, and everything stopped. I was on the west side of the avenue, going south, and a coupe with a man and a woman in it were going south when the light changed. They stopped so near me that I could have put out my hand and touched the woman who was on the right side of the car. I didn't pay any attention to her, except to see that she had white hair and dark sun glasses, and then I heard her give a little choking sound, and I looked at her.

"The man didn't hear her, evidently. He was watching traffic, and quick as lightning she put her finger to her lips, while with the other hand she lowered the sun glasses so that I could see her eyes."

"Marion?" my father and I exclaimed together.

Retorts Impatiently

"Of course!" Ronald retorted impatiently. "Do you think I wouldn't know her eyes anywhere?"

"Then what happened?" I asked breathlessly.

"She put her sun glasses back as quickly as she had lowered them, but the man saw her hand at them, and he barked at her: 'I thought I told you to leave those alone!' Then the lights changed, and he started his car forward before I could make up my mind what to do, especially as she had put her finger on her lips. I wanted to snatch her bodily out of the seat, but I didn't know what trouble I might be bringing on her.

"Besides—I didn't know—I've heard stories—I didn't know but perhaps her ankles were chained to the car and I'd be hurting her terribly if he should be starting the car."

His eyes were filled with horror, and I prodded him gently.

"What did you do, Ronald?"

Followed the Car

"I hurried along the sidewalk as fast as I could without actually running. I was afraid the man would see me in his mirror. And I kept my eyes open for a taxi, but there wasn't one in sight anywhere. Then there came a break in the traffic and he speeded up the car and whipped around a corner, and when I got to that corner they—they weren't anywhere in sight!"

His voice trailed away into a sigh that was almost a groan, and then it rose again in a despairing cry.

"And so I lost her, when she was almost in my arms—in safety. Yet what could I have done?"

He looked wildly from my father to me.

"Tell me where I failed!" he pleaded.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING M. D.

Ankle Sprain

I see an article from a medical officer in the armed forces on the treatment of ankle sprains, which advocates immediate activity and return to duty. A sound doctrine.

It takes me back over thirty years to the time when I was a young assistant to a famous surgeon, Dr. J. F. Binnie. He taught me this then revolutionary doctrine, which was originated by the celebrated orthopedic surgeon of Liverpool, Mr. Robert Jones. In fact, I was myself one of the first patients I tried the method on.

Dr. Binnie strapped up my sprained ankle and ordered me to go out and play a few sets of tennis. Dire were the predictions of the dowagers as to what was going to happen to me. Some of them called up my family and predicted life-long crippling. I would probably use a crutch the rest of my life. But I survived and, while I don't attempt tennis any longer, I do a mean nine holes of golf on that ankle.

Old-Fashioned Methods

Other surgeons used to put a sprained ankle up in a plaster cast, and not allow the victim to use it for six weeks. There used to be a saying—"A sprain is worse than two fractures." What was worse was the treatment. When the ankle got out of the cast it was so stiff that it took six weeks to get it limbered up.

They have one new wrinkle in treatment which is to inject the tissues around the sprain with a local anesthetic—procaine hydrochloride. This stops pain immediately and even after the effects of it wear off, the pain seldom returns.

Immediately after the procaine injection the men in service were sent back to routine duty, which I presume includes at least some marching and hardly showed any effect of the strain thereafter.

Those who were put to bed with a hot water bag or ice cap on the ankle even for a few hours were often disabled for a period of a few days to several weeks. You must get up and begin to move your sprained ankle around immediately.

Adhesive Basket Bandage

They are even getting so they regard the old adhesive tape basket bandage with suspicion. Those men who were taped and told to bear no weight on the leg for several days were a long time getting better. One was disabled eight weeks.

However, I am still for the adhesive basket weave strapping bandage. It gives a kind of massage of the joint as it moves and helps to absorb the exudate.

But there is no doubt that the local anesthetic injection, the adhesive strapping, and immediate activity is the really successful treatment of ankle sprains.

Why the immediate activity should work so well is debatable. It is supposed the improved circulation, the more active exchange of tissue products promotes healing. But whatever the reason, the old bugaboo that a sprain is worse than a fracture is laid forever provided treatment that includes immediate activity is prescribed.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, Sept. 1

THERE IS need of particular fortitude, vigilance and precaution on this day, which is marked for reversals, surprises, duplicity and peculiar undercurrents, a combination which may prove futile, or constructive, according to the prudence, vision, skill and wariness individually exercises. There may be tenacious obstacles to climb over if they may not be pierced, and tricky circumstances may be met by stratagem and shrewdness, but be all have faith, persistence, and guard the health and nervous tension and the tide should turn and bring enduring gains, perhaps with novel programs.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year destined to tax their powers of endurance and fortitude, their ingenuity, skill and ability. Under-cover situations may demand shrewd insight and rigorous handling, huge obstructions may be climbed over or around.

A child born on this day may have much capacity for endurance, fortitude and patience against reversals and duplicities in life. These it may circumvent by its shrewdness, insight and sound abilities.
